Labor Ready To Negotiate But Insists Walk-out Can Be Averted Only by Definite Concessions to Workers.

GARMENT INDUSTRY MAY BE TIED UP

Large Stocks Being Relied on by Manufacturers To Rob Strike Program of Its Effectiveness.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Cotton textile manufacturers in the north and south were reported today to be closing their mills on September 4 unless federal intervention is successful.

Chairman Lloyd Garrison, of the national labor relations board, who is heading the government's peace efforts, still awaited tonight an acceptance by textile employers of his invitation to a peace conference tomorrow or Thursday. There was little expectation that the manufacturers would decline, despite their own reported preparation of plans to meet the strike.

Sloan Asks Delay.

George A. Sloan, chairman of the code authority and president of the cotton textile institute, sent word to Garrison that he had been unable to reach all the persons necessary and that if any meeting were held with the board and the union, it could not be before Thursday.

Labor accepted Garrison's invitation to meet with the manufacturers, but Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, reiterated that "only definite concessions can avert the walkout."

The full membership of the national labor and cotton textile boards discussed at length today the possibility of averting the strike, or of bringing about a settlement if it occurs.

Later, Garrison announced he had requested W. D. Anderson, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, to bring a group of representative southern mill owners to meet with the board tomorrow or Thursday to present the viewpoint of manufacturers from southern states.

At the same time, Gorman served warning that his committee would not deal with the code committee as such, but as authorized representatives of the industry.

Garment Industry Angle.

Meanwhile, both union and administration officials pondered the possible psychological effect upon the textile strike situation of the defiance

BAR HEAD URGES LEGAL PROFESSION TO 'CLEAN HOUSE'

Reputation of Entire Group Is Being Sullied by Crooked Minority, Convention Told.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Earle W. Evans, president of the American Bar Association, today called upon the legal profession to rid itself of dishonest men so that the nation's lawyers may lead and direct the people in their demands for better government.

"Let us in good faith devote ourselves to the task of cleaning our house," Mr. Evans said in addressing the opening session of the association's annual convention.

"It needs it."

He deplored the public's lack of confidence in lawyers and said that much of the suspicion in which they are held is unjustified, but added that the public demands much that is not unreasonable.

"For instance, the public believes that we harbor and otherwise encourage crooked lawyers," he said. "Of course we have not harbored or encouraged them in any direct or affirmative way, but at the same time

SINCLAIR VICTOR; BLEASE IS LOSING; STEPHENS AHEAD

Radical Writer Nominated for Governor by California Democrats; Blease, Bilbo Losing.

By The United Press.

California voters, on the basis of primary returns late Tuesday night, appeared to be turning away from two men who claimed close alliance with the Roosevelt administration to support Upton Sinclair, author-socialist, who promised the state a "new deal" that would outdo the Roosevelt New Deal.

Mississippi and South Carolina joined California at the polls today but except for the senatorial race in Mississippi between Hubert S. Stephens and the swashbuckling Theodore G. Bilbo, who promised to "out-Huey Huey Long" if he were sent to the senate, there was not much general interest.

On the basis of returns from half the state Stephens was leading Bilbo by 3,000 votes and seemed destined to win the gubernatorial nomination. Representative Collins was running a poor third.

Early returns from South Carolina gave Olin D. Johnston a slight lead over former Senator Cole Blaise for the gubernatorial nomination. In California Sinclair was piling up a substantial majority over George Creel, New Deal exponent, and Justice Wardell, one of the original Roosevelt men in the Golden State. The vote from the first 1,419 precincts gave Sinclair 91,802; Creel, 31,611; and Wardell, 3,520.

Governor Frank Merriam was leading in the republican gubernatorial race and seemed destined to win the nomination.

SINCLAIR HAS MAJORITY OF ALMOST TWO TO ONE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Upton Sinclair and his "end poverty in California" platform took a sharp lead in the race for the democratic nomination for governor on the basis of first returns tonight from the state primary election.

Out of 10,703 precincts in the state, 2,400 complete and complete, 2,400 votes, 2,400 known author got 133,446 votes.

KIDNAPERS SECURE $10,000 RANSOM

New York Man Released in Camden After Being Held Two Days.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Ralph Sosis, 38, son of a New York necktie manufacturer, walked into Camden police headquarters tonight and told police he had been released by kidnappers after his father paid a $10,000 ransom.

Sosis said he had been released from a house on the outskirts of Camden. He understood $10,000 ransom, said he understood $10,000 ransom, said he understood $10,000 ransom.

Sosis told police he was kidnapped in New York on Monday morning by four men. He said one of them was known by the name "Louise Fox."

He was blindfolded and driven in an automobile for what he estimated to be three hours, Sosis stated. Then a sparsely furnished room, tied to a chair with his face to the wall and left there with two men on guard.

Early yesterday, he said, his captors took him in an automobile to a nearby store, where there was a telephone booth. He was told to telephone his wife at his home in the Bronx, New York, giving instructions on how the ransom was to be paid.

After making the call, he was taken back to the room, police were told, and tied up again.

Early last night his captors made another telephone call. When they returned he was released.

WIFE DENIES RANSOM OF ANY AMOUNT PAID

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Irving Sosis, a brother of the kidnap victim released in Camden tonight, said he understood $10,000 ransom had been paid, but the latter's wife denied any money had been delivered to the abductors.

"We are poor people," she said, adding that her husband had been out of work two and a half years. "Neither my family nor his people had any money to give them."

Mrs. Sosis was reached at her home in the Bronx, while the brother was at the home of his father, Aaron Sosis, necktie manufacturer, in Brooklyn.

Real Love Match To Unite British and Greek Royalty

PRINCE GEORGE. PRINCESS MARINA.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—A Balkan romance, its setting the picturesque Slovenian Alps of Yugoslavia, culminated tonight in the engagement of Prince George of England to wed the beautiful Princess Marina of Greece.

Like any other young lover, King George's fourth son, asked first for the hand of the princess and then telegraphed home for his royal parents' consent.

"It is with the greatest pleasure," the announcement from the palace said, "that the king and queen announce the betrothal of their dear son, Prince George, to Princess Marina, daughter of Prince and Princess Nicolas of Greece, to which union the king has gladly given his consent."

An acquaintance that dates back five years to the young couple's first meeting in London ripened into love. London understood tonight, at the summer home of Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, where Prince George and Princess Marina are now visiting.

Princess Is 27.

The 32-year-old son of Britain's royal family and the 27-year-old Greek princess, known through Europe for her beauty, had shown liking for each other's company on the several occasions that Princess Marina visited London.

Then Prince George, on vacation, went to visit Prince Paul at Bled, Yugoslavia. Marina, youngest sister of Prince Paul, was there, too.

Rumors immediately circulated over the continent of their engagement but London refused to believe, all the while the couple were in the city.

EXTRADITION FIGHT IS LOST BY NEGRO

R. E. Burns' Brother Pleads in Vain; Paul Smith Ordered Back.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Aaron Steiner today refused to interfere with the extradition of Paul Smith, 21, negro fugitive from a Georgia chain gang, despite the intervention of a brother of Robert Elliott Burns, former Chicago editor who twice escaped from the chain gang and wrote a book about his experiences.

Burns' brother, the Rev. Vincent G. Burns, added his plea to those of David S. Romano, counsel for the Brotherhood of Youth, and Philip Watson, Smith's negro attorney.

The Rev. Mr. Burns declared Smith probably will be killed if he is returned to Georgia because he slew two bloodhounds in his fight. He urged the court to request Warler H. B. Smith, who came here from Georgia to return Smith to the Whitefield county highway camp, to see that the prisoner was protected from brutality.

Justice Steiner replied he had no authority to make such a request of Warler Smith and added: "The court is not to be swayed by such arguments as that he will be subjected to cruel and inhuman treatment."

GEORGE V. GRESS, PARK ZOO DONOR, PASSES IN FLORIDA

Philanthropist Also Gave Cylorama to City Many Years Ago; Dies at Age of 88; Rites Here Today.

George V. Gress, who donated the world-famous cylorama of the Battle of Atlanta and the Grant park zoo to the city of Atlanta, died Tuesday afternoon at the home of his son, Morgan V. Gress, in Jacksonville, Fla. He was 88 years of age.

A native of Pennsylvania, Mr. Gress came south as a young man and acquired vast lumber holdings in Wilcox county in south Georgia. He was elected to the state legislature from that county and served one term.

Mr. Gress gave the zoo to the city in 1889 and his donation included 80 animals. He stipulated in the gift that the city was to replace each animal at its death, and the municipality has added to the collection.

Cylorama Brought Here.

In 1895 the cylorama was brought to Atlanta for exhibition by the owners of the famous painting, which is now valued at more than $1,000,000. Mr. Gress was not living in Atlanta at the time but purchased the circular picture of the Battle of Atlanta, on the advice of his attorney, Charles J. Haden, and gave it outright to the city. The cylorama is the only painting of its kind in the world and three German artists worked on it for many months. It was exhibited in most of the principal cities of the United States before Mr. Gress bought it.

Mr. Gress and his wife, who died in 1921, resided on Peachtree street near Ivy for the period of their residence here.

Offered to Orphanage.

He at first offered the painting to an orphanage in Decatur, but it was declined. The orphanage did not want to operate a pay show on Sunday. He then donated it to the city.

Present, the picture is being rehung by artists, under the direction of Wilbur G. Kurtz, as one of the PWA art projects, of which J. J. Haverly is in charge.

The cylorama is remarkable for its illusion of realism, and visitors often

FIRE EMPLOYEES LEAD OPPOSITION, TALMADGE AVERS

Governor Says, in Radio Address, 40-Cent Wage Scale Would Paralyze Road Building.

Governor Eugene Talmadge Tuesday night charged that if the 40 cents an hour wage minimum had been put into effect by the state highway department, it not only would have paralyzed the department's road building but would have reduced to a minimum the road work being done by counties. In addition it also would have prevented the board from saving the $2,000,000 it now has on hand to be devoted to the general treasury for payment of the past-due salaries of school teachers and the past-due pensions of Confederate veterans and their widows, he said.

The chief executive, in a radio address broadcast over station WSB, also declared that his opposition does not itself want the 40 cents an hour wage scale put into effect and that his chief opposition is coming from two per cent of the people he has appointed since he became commissioner of agriculture in 1928.

He failed to make good on the jobs he gave them.

The governor emphasized that the state highway board would not have been able to build and maintain roads in a majority of the counties of the state "if Talmadge had been bluffed and bulldozed into approving" the 40 cents an hour minimum wage for common labor.

No Names Mentioned.

The governor, in referring to ousted employees leading the opposition, left no doubt that he was shooting at J. J. Mangham, former chairman of the state highway board, who is now a leading supporter of one of his two opponents. He did not mention Mangham by name, however, continuing his policy of not mentioning the opposition by name save in a few instances when he has directed his fire on some of the other supporters of Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville.

Bristling with the typical Talmadge fire throughout, the governor's address, which occupied the 30 minutes between 7 and 7:30 o'clock (central standard time) Tuesday night, contained a review of the achievements of his administration, it being pointed out that the only campaign pledge remaining unfulfilled is that which

U. S. CRACKS DOWN ON 'LEGGERS HERE

Price Sharply Advances; Only Repeal Liquor Will Be Handled in Atlanta.

The price of whisky took a drastic jump Tuesday night in Atlanta and dealers said that after a few days virtually all the liquor sold in the city will be repeal whisky.

Price of synthetic gin, rum, bourbon, rum and corn "likker" was hiked 50 cents to $1 a quart, and repeal whisky was increased from $1.50 a pint to $2 as the result of a general agreement among dealers.

The purveyors of the illicit beverage plan to obtain federal licenses and to pay tax on all whisky, so that only state laws are violated, and thereby render themselves safe from prosecution by the government, it was said.

Last night a dealer said there were 163 federal officers in the city searching for whisky on which no tax had been paid.

Most bootlegging establishments closed their doors early Tuesday night and planned no more deliveries until a federal license is procured. Already there have been approximately 350 such licenses issued in Georgia, technically bone dry, since the national prohibition act was repealed.

Whisky which sold for $1 a fifth of a gallon Tuesday afternoon and for some years previously, Tuesday night cost $1.50 or $2, and was hard to get at those prices.

Federal agents are understood to have told bootleggers they would not be prosecuted by the United States government if federal licenses were purchased and tax paid on all alcohol and liquor. W. E. Page, internal revenue collector of Georgia, or R. E. Tuttle, of the federal alcohol tax unit, could not be reached for a statement Tuesday night.

But it seems that the old-fashioned bootleg "likker" is doomed and that Atlantans are destined henceforth to drink the government-inspected-and-approved repeal whisky, or none at all.

Uncle Remus Memorial Plan Hit by City Art Commission

The Atlanta art commission, meeting Tuesday, adopted resolutions refusing to act as an associate committee on the Uncle Remus Memorial Foundation and listing seven reasons why it did not believe the time was suitable for such a memorial and why the present setup of the foundation was not satisfactory to all concerned.

The resolution also requested Clarence H. Calhoun, member of the foundation committee and attorney for WGST, and the radio station not in future to associate the art commission, either individually or as a committee, with the movement.

The Tuesday meeting was the first since appointment of the art commission for a three-year term by the mayor and city council. It organized by electing J. J. Haverly chairman and J. Frank Beck secretary. Its membership, all of whom were present at the Tuesday meeting, consists of Thomas K. Glenn, Walter C. Hill, Mr. Haverly, Mr. Beck and Robert F. Maddox.

Mr. Glenn introduced the resolution at the organization meeting of the art commission, Mr. Calhoun said that the invitation to them to take part in the memorial movement was chiefly a matter of courtesy and that the action would in no wise affect the movement for a suitable monument to Joel Chandler Harris, southern author and creator of Uncle Remus stories.

The memorial committee, he stated, is slated to meet at 11 o'clock this morning at the home of Mrs. A. McD. Wilson. In addition to Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Calhoun, members are Dr. M. L. Brittain and Dr. M. D. Collins and a fifth member yet to be selected.

FEDERAL CREDIT BELIEVED SOUND

Quality of Collateral and Integrity of Borrowers to Prevent Large Loan Loss, Secretary Thinks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. assured the nation tonight that the federal government would not suffer substantial losses under the "New Deal."

Although he admitted that the public debt had risen $6,000,000,000 during the first 16 months of the Roosevelt administration, he placed the actual cost to date of the recovery drive at $505,000,000.

In his first radio address since assuming office, the tall, wealthy cabinet officer repeated an impressive mass of figures designed to dispel apprehension concerning the nation's finances resulting from ceaseless political attacks upon "New Deal" expenditures.

No Mention of Inflation.

It was the first general accounting by the treasury to the public since the Roosevelt administration took over control of the government. Morgenthau promised tonight to make public at regular intervals henceforth complete details of the treasury's position.

At no time during his 15-minute talk did the treasury head mention inflation. One news organization other than the United Press interpreted Morgenthau's statement that the $2,800,000,000 profit earned by the treasury through devaluation of gold eventually would "flow back into the treasury" as a statement of a definite indication of approaching currency expansion.

Treasury officials promptly pointed to Morgenthau's statement that this money "is segregated in the so-called stabilization fund and for the present we intend to keep it there" as being complete refutation of the inflation interpretation.

Officials at first contemplated revisions in the Morgenthau text to clarify this issue but decided against them at the last moment before the secretary went on the air.

Books.

Morgenthau placed the increase in the public debt under the Roosevelt administration at $6,000,000,000. Against this gross increase, he said, the treasury can offset, now or ultimately, the following assets:

An increase in the treasury's cash balance of $1,600,000,000 resulting from the reduction of the gold content of the dollar.

A total of $1,095,000,000 in recoverable claims from emergency agencies set up by the government.

Within Budget.

At the same time, with the exception of an emergency drought authorization of $525,000,000, the government is still keeping within budget estimates.

Morgenthau recognized that it may be necessary later to write off certain losses which now are included as assets against recovery expenditures.

"But the quality of the collateral which secures the various loans; the good credit of our state and local governments; the record of private business in meeting its obligations, all combine to give assurance that the

MILWAUKEE HOARDS $20 BILLS TO MEET PAYMENT ON BONDS

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—(P)—The city of Milwaukee, eluding a federal ordinance, today had $200,000 in $20 bills, the first of a $2,500,000 cash fund, in a safe deposit vault.

Dr. John W. Mudruch, city treasurer, explained the money was being stored away to meet nearly $2,000,000 in bonded debt payments due January 1.

When the city several weeks ago sought to exchange its check for $1,000 and $5,000 bills for safe deposit storage, the federal reserve bank refused to comply with the request, interpreting the plan as a form of hoarding violating the 1933 Roosevelt decree.

Dr. Mudruch said the city would continue to put aside from $100,000 to $200,000 in $20 bills every few days. Officials doubted whether federal officials would interfere with the plan adopted to escape the state's two per cent insurance assessment on published bonds.

SMITH AND SHOUSE CONFER ON LEAGUE

Du Pont Also Interviewed by Head; Much Money Already Received.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(P)—Organization details of the American Liberty League were perfected today through conferences Joseph P. Shouse, president, held with former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Irene du Pont, members of the executive committee.

Withholding comment on President Roosevelt's statement on the league, Shouse said that his trip from Cape Cod had been to organize "the mechanics" of the body which has as its announced purpose the protection of constitutional liberty.

He said he held separate conferences with Smith, democratic presidential nominee in 1928, du Pont, wealthy Delaware manufacturer who was one of President Roosevelt's supporters in 1932.

The meeting with Smith lasted but a few minutes and was devoted exclusively to the large volume of mail the former governor had received since the formation of the league, said Shouse.

"Amazing" Response.

He added that his brief talk with du Pont was along the same lines. Shouse, who was the pro-Smith candidate for permanent chairman of the national democratic convention in 1932 at Chicago, said Smith turned over to him all mail received since the league was formed and du Pont did likewise.

"The response to the league has been perfectly amazing," said Shouse, "and the amount of mail received has been simply astounding."

"There have been many voluntary contributions and requests for information on the means for making further contributions. This is despite the fact that there has been no solicitation."

"However, I would not say we have received a large amount of money," Shouse said that no date had been set for a meeting of the executive committee, which will ultimately be increased to 18 members, but that it was certain no meeting would be held until after Labor Day.

He pointed out that three members of the executive committee, John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee in 1924, Representative James W. Wadsworth, and former Governor Nathan L. Miller, of New York, were not expected back in the city until after Monday.

There will be frequent private meetings of the executive committee

Taylor Murder Trial Slated for Thursday

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 28.—(P)—The trial of Harold Taylor, accused of the slaying of Miss Faye New, Howard College co-ed, here August 20, was set for next Thursday at a conference of authorities.

In this and other cities, he said, and in addition to the Washington headquarters offices will be opened in New York and other focal points.

He said his Washington staff is preparing membership blanks and organizing other details in connection with the operation of the league.

Nine questions concerning the purposes of the league were sent to Shouse during the day by Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Hays, asserting that with the exception of former Governor Smith, few members of the new organization had been "conspicuous in fighting for the rights of individuals, particularly workers," asked how far the league would go in protecting free speech, free assembly and a free press.

He also asked: "Will you take part in a campaign to prevent the breaking of strikes through picketing workmen as 'reds' in order to arouse public antipathy for them?"

Hitler Not Seeking Domination Of Free Churches, Newton Says

Adolf Hitler has no desire to become head of the church and will not force the free churches of Germany into the state church, Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, said Tuesday.

While he saw evidence in Germany and France "of a militaristic spirit and heard the footfall of soldiers everywhere," Dr. Newton said the average man and woman in both countries dreaded war and were bitterly opposed to a renewal of the hostilities of 1914.

Dr. Newton said Bishop Mueller, Hitler's representative in religious matters, assured him and a group of other foreign preachers that his chief had no aim of forcing the free churches, the Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and others, into the German state church.

He said Hitler's address at the funeral of former President von Hindenburg, said the Nazi chieftain had promised to carry out the Christian principles of the dead leader and showed such sincerity in making the promises that he did not believe Hitler could be so great a hypocrite as to so vehemently promise what he did not intend to carry out.

Dr. Newton recalled preaching in the Charlottentown Baptist church in Berlin and said the audience might

ON TRIAL IN HIS ADOPTED STATE

By Robert S. Allen and Drew Pearson in "Washington Merry-Go-Round."

WASHINGTON, August 24.—Of all state contests raging throughout the country this year, there are two over which President Roosevelt is keeping a close and personal watch.

First in his interest is the race in New York—his native state—where his warm and personal choice, Governor Herbert Lehman, is up for re-election.

Second is the furious gubernatorial jangle now at its height in that state referred to by the President as "my second home," famous for its watermelons and its peaches, and last year not so favorably known for the demagogic buffooneries of Governor "Gene" Talmadge.

The President's lively concern in the Georgia melee arises not only from the fact that it was its curative waters which helped restore him to health, and that he owns a home and farm there.

There is a close political and personal reason. He has been made the issue of the campaign.

"Talmadge or Roosevelt" is the cry that has been raised all over the state.

And in Georgia, where the President is revered with a fierce loyalty, this is a serious matter.

Talmadge and his chief opponent, Circuit Judge Claude Pittman, of Cartersville, are, of course, both Democrats. In Georgia, as in most Southern states, the Democratic nomination is equivalent to election.

HUEY LONGISM.

But as a Democrat, "Gene's" attitude toward the New Deal has savored strong of Huey Longism.

Talmadge has sneeringly ridiculed the administration's agricultural policies. He has berated the NRA, made flip remarks about the Brain Trust.

Last winter he undertook to set himself up as dictator of FERA grants to Georgia. But in this ambition he came a sad cropper.

Lean, two-fisted FERA boss, Harry Hopkins, cracked down on him. Bruskiely he removed all funds from the governor's jurisdiction, appointed his own administrator.

Talmadge's affinity to the Louisiana Kingfish extends not merely to this political sniping of the national administration. There are other strong similarities.

Talmadge affects the Louisianian's ranting style of oratory, his flamboyant demagogic promises. When he makes a spiel he sheds his coat to display a pair of red galls, and bellows for a "distribution of wealth."

Last spring, he struck a pose of being homesick for the smells and sounds of the farm, built a barn in the rear of the mansion and grazed his cows on its velvety lawns.

All this has been meat for his opponent, Judge Pittman.

"It is Gene Talmadge or President Roosevelt," Pittman tells his audiences, and the refrain is finally getting under Talmadge's skin.

Despite his hostile acts and outbursts against the administration, Talmadge insists that he is a warm supporter of the President. But the record is against him.

TURNDOWN.

So last week he resorted to a desperate expedient.

By night plane he rushed to the Capital one of his banker friends, Ryburn Clay, president of Atlanta's Fulton National Bank. For despite Gene's insistence about being "the poor man's friend," some of his closest associates—like Huey Long's—are bankers and big business men.

Clay sought out Marvin McIntyre, one of the President's secretaries, and explained his secret mission.

Talmadge, he said, wanted a letter from "some one in authority," stating that the President did not consider him a foe, was not opposed to his re-election.

He got a letter all right.

The missive curtly stated that the President was not interfering in Democratic contests.

Judge Pittman is now calling on Talmadge to make public a letter he received from the President himself last winter, when Gene and Harry Hopkins were warring.

The President's letter was hot and emphatic.

Talmadge, so far, has refused to produce the communication. And the chances are 100 to 1 that he won't.

NOTE—The "Merry-Go-Round" is syndicated to approximately 200 newspapers throughout the United States. Wherever it is read the election of Talmadge in Georgia would be considered as a "Slap in the Face" of Franklin D. Roosevelt and a condemnation of his New Deal.

This advertisement is paid for by friends of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

17-YEAR-OLD GIRL DIES AFTER CRASH

Miss Elizabeth Campbell and Negro Messenger
Boy Killed in Accidents.

A 17-year-old Atlanta girl and a negro messenger boy died Tuesday from injuries received in traffic accidents which occurred Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Homer Campbell, of Bolton road, died shortly after 2 o'clock Tuesday morning at Grady hospital from injuries received late Monday night in an automobile crash at Marietta and Rice streets, in which three other persons were injured.

Willie Reese, negro messenger boy for a Lane drugstore, was struck from his bicycle at Peachtree and Sixteenth streets Tuesday morning by an automobile driven by W. H. Alexander, of Gorman road, according to police reports. He died at 1 o'clock in the afternoon at Grady hospital from a fractured skull.

The death of Miss Campbell and the negro boy brought the total fatalities from automobile accidents within the city limits to 36 since January 1, and the total for August to 6.

Miss Campbell was injured when the car in which she was riding with Elmer Owens, 1474 Marietta road; W. O. Ivey, 30 Hill street, and her sister, Miss Mary Frances Campbell, 18, struck a telephone pole. The other three were injured, Ivey seriously. He was admitted to Grady hospital suffering from fractures of both legs and other injuries. His condition Tuesday night was reported as "fair." The other two were treated and dismissed. The sister of the dead girl was painfully cut about the head and her hand was hurt.

Miss Campbell is survived by her father, her sister, and a brother, Homer Campbell Jr. Services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Mount Vernon Methodist church and interment, in charge of J. Austin Dillon Company, will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

Willie Reese resided at 219 Corley avenue. Witnesses said that he was "shaking" his bicycle in and out of traffic and rode directly into the path of the machine driven by Alexander. Patrolmen O. M. Morgan and J. W. Mashburn, who investigated, made a case of reckless driving against Alexander.

Ralph Capone Faces New Trouble on Taxes

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—More tax troubles for Ralph Capone!

Just a few weeks out of McNeill Island penitentiary where he atoned for dodging federal income taxes, Capone was named today in a suit by the state to collect $20,424 delinquent taxes and penalties, alleged to be overdue on personal property for 1932.

LAKE GUARDSMEN SAVE GALE-CRIPPLED YACHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The sea-going yacht Ava, her engines disabled and tossing on a heavy sea, was towed into harbor by a coast guard crew today when sighted off the Oak street beach in danger of foundering on a breakwater.

Aboard was a party voyaging from New York by way of the Great Lakes and Mississippi to Miami, Fla. John L. Wade, of New York, production manager of the Pictorial Educational Bureau which owns the vessel, was in charge.

Two of the motors were silent and the other was sputtering when the coast guard caught the distress signal and sent a crew to the rescue. The small boat fought a stiff wind to bring the yacht into the river mouth.

Kay, College Stylist, Is Here To Start Davison Show Today

By MAINER LEE TOLER.

Kay is here. Surely this youthful personage, so well known in the college style world, needs no introduction to feminine Atlanta. For the past four years the charming specialist in college girls' clothes has been brought here by Davison-Paxon Company. Her visits are timed for this particular season so that she may assist the hundreds of Atlanta girls going away to school to select their wardrobes.

Arriving Tuesday with trunks full of clothes especially designed for college girls Kay will stage the annual College Fashion Show on the sixth floor of Davison-Paxon Company Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of this week at 3:30 o'clock. She invites all college girls, their mothers, aunts and grandmothers to attend the show and see for themselves the proper apparel created for the 1934-35 college belle.

Appearing like a smartly dressed college girl herself Kay told a group of friends soon after her arrival of the many fascinating styles designed for this season's college girl. Having returned recently from Paris, where she attended the fall openings of famous French couturiers, Kay spoke with authority in regard to the attention given the designing of college girls' clothes. She gives all credit to the renowned Chanel for the simplicity and youthful lines featuring clothes for college girls. "This famous Parisian designer has always sponsored this type of dress for youthful femininity," said Kay, as she lifted from her many trunks every type of dress for every type of girl.

"Although," said Kay, "college fashions are more or less standardized there are some radical changes in the forthcoming autumn fashions." She plans to tell of these changes at the shows scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday. She will also tell how varied are the needs for girls attending southern, eastern and middle western colleges. "The needs of the sophomores, junior and senior are equally as varied," said the college style expert who will emphasize this fact in her talks at the shows on Wednesday and Thursday. Particular stress will be given to the wardrobe of the timid young freshman who anticipates her first year away at school. According to Kay, the freshman's wardrobe is most important as her future popularity depends greatly upon first impressions made by her clothes.

Among the notable style trends in the display of clothes brought by Kay is the tunic dress, which is particularly becoming to the tall slender type of girl. Hand-knitted dresses are also favored for college girls, especially those fashioned in two pieces. Fascinating indeed are the turn about or wear-me-two-way sweaters shown by Kay. Another new sweater sponsored at the Paris openings are those boasting a peplum which are particularly attractive when worn with checked or plaid woolen skirts.

In addition to sweaters Kay advises every girl to own a suede jacket for campus wear.

Acting as models at the fashion show the correct clothes for college girls to wear to sorority and fraternity dances. Jewel tones, such as ruby, amethyst, sapphire, emerald and turquoise reign in popular shades for affairs of this kind with velvets and crepes ranking first as materials for fashioning these lovely dresses.

Acting as models at the College Fashion Show Wednesday and Thursday will be a group of Atlanta belles who will leave in the early fall for college. They are Miss Dahlis McDurdo, who will attend the University of Georgia; Miss Mary Bryan, who goes to Oglethorpe University; Miss Frances Stanton, who will enroll at Emory University; Miss Claire Bullock, who will be a student at Randolph-Macon College; Miss Marjorie Gould, who returns to the University of Georgia; Miss Dorothy Calloway, who will attend the North Avenue Presbyterian School for Girls; Miss Helen Roberts, who will study at Washington Seminary; Miss Beverly Rogers, who will go to Vassar; Miss Sarah Hopkins, who will attend Finch school in New York, and Miss Mary Garland, who will be enrolled at Agnes Scott.

Chi Phis Will Open Congress Thursday

Plans have been completed for the entertainment of Chi Phi's who will come here from all parts of the country to attend the national congress of the fraternity, and the reception committee, headed by Charles E. Shepard, will meet the national officers when they reach Atlanta today.

The only southerner among the national officers is also a Georgian, Dr. Edmund F. Cook, of Macon, grand beta.

Other officers who will attend the session are Daniel Dustin Craft, grand alpha of Chicago, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Craft; Marcus D. Munn, grand eta, also of Chicago; Frederick W. Krebs, grand gamma of Cleveland; A. W. Torbet, grand delta, of Chicago; Dr. Theodore B. Appel, grand epsilon, of Lancaster, Pa.; J. Irving Seales, grand zeta, of Chicago, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Seales, and Phil Schiesswohl, chairman of the executive committee, and Mrs. Schiesswohl, who come from Chicago.

The first business session of the congress is scheduled for Thursday morning. That afternoon the visitors will be entertained at a barbecue and swimming party at Brookhaven, to be followed by a dance at the Biltmore that night. Special entertainment for the visiting ladies will include a reception on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Biltmore, and a luncheon on Friday at Brookhaven.

TALMADGE CLUB IN 8TH MEETS THURSDAY NIGHT

The Eighth Ward Talmadge Club will meet at 8 o'clock Thursday night at the Home Park school, at State street and Home Park avenue, it was announced Tuesday.

C. A. Vandiver will preside over the meeting and introduce Stephens Mitchell, president of the club, who will make the principal address. Other talks will be made by Henry C. Davidson, president of the Fulton County Talmadge Club; Foster L. Hunter and Mrs. J. G. Morris.

Marion Williamson, organization chairman of the Druid Hills-Emory University unit of the DeKalb County Talmadge Club, announced Tuesday that there will be a meeting of Governor Talmadge's friends and supporters of the area at his home, 1247 Clifton road, at 7:45 o'clock Friday night. Plans for the conduct of the campaign during the final days of the race will be discussed at this meeting.

DR. ANDERSON HOLDS CLINIC ON SATURDAY

A clinic for the non-surgical treatment of hernia will be held at the office of Dr. D. L. Anderson, 1124 Mortgage Guarantee building, on Saturday and Sunday next.

Finance Board Seeks Salary Equalization

Revision and equalization of salaries of the 2,500 non-school employees of the city was sought Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the finance committee, presided over by Councilman Aubrey Milam, vice chairman.

Under the committee action, a special committee of five persons, one of whom must be the city auditor, will make a study of salaries with a view of revising them.

Milam, Alderman J. Sid Tiller and Councilman Max M. Cuba, all members of the finance committee, were instructed to nominate the committee at the next session of the committee, September 11.

The nominations will be subject to confirmation of the committee and then will be submitted to council and the mayor for their approval. The move is an attempt to get definite action on equalization.

PEACH BALLS PLANNED BY 4 MORE COUNTIES

Efforts to determine "peach queens" in Georgia counties are well under way now. Meriwether, Brooks, Lowndes and Evans counties reporting completed arrangements.

Peach balls are being staged throughout the state and winners in the county contests will be awarded free trips to a Century of Progress Exposition, at Chicago, during Georgia Week.

The Meriwether affair will be held at the Casino Friday evening with Frank McSherry's orchestra furnishing the music. Quietness of the event will be held at the West End swimming pool on the same night.

Valdosta's ball will be held at the Country Club September 7. Claxton will be the rallying point in Evans on the same date.

MARSHALL H. GEORGE TO BE BURIED TODAY

Final tribute to Marshall H. George, 56, assistant district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, will be paid this morning when funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock at Spring Hill chapel.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will officiate and interment, in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son, will be in Decatur cemetery.

Mr. George, one of the most widely known and loved radio executives in the south, had been employed here for the last 30 years. He died suddenly Monday from a heart attack while riding with a friend.

2 Bandits Die in Trap After Postoffice Raid

DENDRON, Va., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Two bandits were shot to death, and a third wounded today when officers and postoffice inspectors trapped the band as they sought to rob the postoffice here.

E. W. Austin, of Brambleton, a Norfolk suburb, was shot down by police gun fire as he fled after emptying his pistol at the police party. Johnny Bernard, also of Brambleton, died in a Norfolk hospital a short time later from bullet wounds.

John Crank, alias Johnny Creekmore, well known to police in Norfolk, Newport News and Phoebus, suffered flesh wounds and was held by federal authorities after treatment in a hospital.

Officers, apparently with full information on the planned robbery, surrounded the little postoffice building and shot it out with the desperadoes as they emerged. Detective H. C. Gorton Jr., of Norfolk, was wounded in the wrist and abdomen but hospital attendants said the injuries were not serious.

Pittman Club To Hear Reuben Arnold Speak

Reuben Arnold, Atlanta lawyer, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Fulton County Pittman Club at 8 o'clock tonight at the Piedmont hotel. The meeting also will be featured by the auctioning off of a bale of cotton given Judge Claude C. Pittman's campaign by a group of Colquitt county farmers. Barney Bernard will be the auctioneer.

The meeting will be presided over by Mack Tharpe, president of the club, and will be broadcast over station WSB.

Other speakers will include J. Sid Tiller, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor; M. L. Bell, Judge Shepard Bryan and Scott Chandler.

Beer Dealers Quit In Colquitt County

While the legal counsel of the treasury department was still debating whether to impose a $1,000 excise tax on beer and liquor dealers in dry states, Moultrie and Colquitt county beer dealers had gone out of business Tuesday on instructions of Sheriff T. V. Beard of Moultrie.

Recently the sheriff warned dealers to rid themselves of their beer stocks, adding that he would make cases against those selling the brew after August 25. Reports to his office Tuesday indicated that his ultimatum had been complied with.

Meanwhile, W. E. Page, collector of internal revenue here, said that he had issued no orders to collect a government tax, but that he will issue such an order for Georgia, if instructed to do so by Washington, where the matter now is under consideration. No decision had been reached Tuesday.

GRADUATE OF TECH IS HARVARD WINNER

Hugh Stubbins, a graduate of Georgia Tech, who attended the Harvard School of Architecture last year under a scholarship won while at Tech, will return to Harvard this fall for a second year of graduate work. This was made possible, Stubbins said while in Atlanta Tuesday, through a second scholarship awarded him at Harvard.

Stubbins, who is a native of Birmingham, won several prizes while at Harvard, including the conjuncture prize given in competition with students from Harvard, Massachusetts School of Technology and other institutions.

10-Year-Old Atlantan Wounded by Playmate

An operation to remove a 22-caliber rifle bullet from the arm of Charles Sutter Jr., 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sutter, 2115 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., failed

Tuesday at Emory University hospital when surgeons found that the bullet had broken into three pieces. The youth had been shot by a playmate in the afternoon and was taken to the hospital for the operation. Surgeons explained that the bullet probably shattered when it struck the bone.

The boy's father is department manager at Sears & Roebuck Company.

Carolanan Pardoned.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The department of justice reported today that President Roosevelt has granted a full pardon and restored citizenship to Morris Chaplin, of Greenville, S. C., who served a term in the Atlanta federal penitentiary for conviction on a charge of conspiracy to conceal assets in bankruptcy.

TALMADGE'S

*Promises in 1932
Are Facts—in 1934 . . . .*

Facts

A TALMADGE PLEDGE—$3 Automobile license tags for Georgia. The Talmadge accomplishment—In spite of an obstructionist group that thwarted legislation, this promise was fulfilled by executive mandate and $5,800,000 saved to the people in two years. Talmadge's fulfillment of pledges has become traditional in Georgia.

A TALMADGE PLEDGE—Reduction in public utility service rates. The Talmadge accomplishment—More than $10,000,000 saved to the people of Georgia in telephone rates, light and power rates, passenger and freight rates, surcharge on Pullman fares, truck and bus rates; all this in face of opposition by powerful and resourceful interests in the U. S.

A TALMADGE PLEDGE—Reorganization of the State Highway Department, destruction of its system of wasteful patronage. Accomplishment—Savings of $2,000,000 in overhead expenses, to be applied to paying the school teachers and Confederate pensions. Another item in the record of savings accomplished by Eugene Talmadge is his reduction of ad valorem taxes by 20 per cent—more than $2,500,000 for the people of Georgia.

More than $15,000,000 saved for the people of Georgia by Eugene Talmadge through faithful fulfillment of his pledges stands as a record that challenges denial.

These savings—accomplished by economical administration, by fidelity to promises in the face of powerful hostile interests, by determined application of the law's benefits—will be continued if Governor Talmadge is re-elected, lost if he is defeated by the groups that have fought them bitterly and that are behind his opposition.

Re-election of Eugene Talmadge means approval of the record showing that in his term as Governor the State Government for the first time in thirty years has been enabled to operate without borrowing one cent—that all State Departments ran normally and $2,141,177.34 of debts were paid—that the total cost of State Government was $6,745,866.07 less in 1933 than in 1932, due to rigid economy—that for the first time in 30 years all indebtedness of eleemosynary institutions has been paid—that new accommodations have been established at the State Hospital at Milledgeville and the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Alto.

Re-election of Eugene Talmadge means recognition of the fact that a Talmadge pledge guarantees accomplishment. Payment of school teachers and Confederate pensioners by $2,000,000 he has promised to apply from highway funds is certain. And certain also is complete payment of the State's past-due debts—a 1934 pledge.

Besides debt freedom for the State, Eugene Talmadge seeks creation of the office of Lieutenant Governor and establishment of a four-year term for Governor—two reforms designed to end the danger of control of high office by vested interests.

Re-election of Talmadge means reward for definite and measurable service rendered in behalf of the people. It means tribute to accomplishment.

MURPHY, LE CRAW AGAIN SCORE KEY

Alderman Defends Schools, Assails Mayor for Paris Interview.

By HERMAN D. HANCOCK.
Alderman J. Charlie Murphy and Roy LeCraw, seeking the majority nomination in the municipal primary, took the stump again Tuesday night at two different meetings, criticized each other and leveled a fire against Mayor James L. Key, who is seeking re-nomination.

Murphy spoke at the Georgia Avenue school, second ward, and LeCraw addressed a meeting of Greater Atlanta Post No. 390, Veterans, of Fort-Elm.

Murphy continued to push TVA power for Atlanta, defend the public school system and Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, and again drove thrusts at LeCraw and Key. While LeCraw reiterated his contention that Atlanta wants a new deal in the mayor's chair and a younger man.

The Sims-Millican battle for the senatorial nomination from the 35th Georgia district was quiet Tuesday night as principals "rested." Millican will speak tonight at 7:45 o'clock at the Slaton school, third ward, and Sims is slated to attend a barbecue at Buckhead.

Humphries Club Planned.

An eleventh ward club to sponsor the re-nomination of Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton county superior court, is slated to be formed tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. P. Wall, 283 Moreland avenue, S. W.

LeCraw will speak at the Moreland Avenue school at 7:30 o'clock Friday night.

Key has announced he will give state elections the right-of-way until after the September 12 primary and will not schedule any further meetings until after that date.

"When Mayor Key gave out that 'yellow-pajamas' interview to that beautiful young lady reporter in Paris and returned home to be met with a brass band headed by Luke Arnold, his executive secretary, he forgot the good people to whom he catered before he was nominated as mayor," Murphy said in his Georgia Avenue school address.

"From that day on, he was a changed man. When he offered for re-election, he sought the support of school employees and the people who go to church on Sunday, but he forgot all of them after he went on the mayors' junket to Paris."

Public Ownership.
"He didn't promise to get public ownership of utilities in his last race, but he did in 1918, when he made his successful race. I suspect the reason he has not gotten public ownership of any utilities is that he made friends with the Georgia Power Company, and this is not an attack on the company."

"We have paid the Georgia Power Company for all the service it has given us, and we do not owe it anything. If the people of Atlanta want TVA power here, however, they should speak out about it. They must convince council that they want action. Money interests are working in devious ways to prevent TVA power from coming here, but it is going to be mighty hard to convince people of Atlanta that they should pay for power which could be bought from TVA for $1.50."

"The mayor has engaged in duplicity in his dealings with the schools. He is now engaged in scornful criticism of that department under the guise of economy, and he has attacked Dr. Sutton. I had rather follow Dr. Sutton on school matters than any jackass I know."

Plenty of Experience.
"No one can accuse the mayor of not having had experience, but do you want to send that kind of a man back there? Do you want that kind of an administration of city affairs?"

"If you were going to hire a washwoman, a cook or have a house built, you would want to engage somebody who had had experience. Mr. LeCraw may be a good businessman. He might make a good mayor, but I believe the people of Atlanta want and need experience in that office."

"Mr. LeCraw asks you to elect him because he says he is a good businessman, because he has been president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and active in other civic

Food Prices Highest Since December 1931

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Retail food prices shot upward to their highest level since December 15, 1931, during the two weeks ended August 14.

For the same amount of food that a housewife could have gotten for $1 in 1931, she had to pay $1.11 during the first two weeks of this month, the labor department reported today. Prices still were 30.5 per cent below their 1926 average, however.

The department's index showed an accumulated rise of slightly more than 4 per cent since April 24, when the present increase began.

The low point in recent years came April 15 last year when 90 cents bought the same amount of groceries that $1 bought in 1931.

"The effect of the drought upon retail food prices," the department said, "is shown by an 8.6 per cent rise in the average price of eggs, a 5.6 per cent advance in butter and lard, a 3.2 per cent increase in pork chops and a 1 per cent or more higher price for sliced ham, bacon, flour and corn meal."

HELD BETWEEN PILINGS, CHILD DIES IN WATER

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Held head down when one of her legs caught between pilings as she lost her balance, nine-year-old Shirley Anderson was drowned in three feet of water yesterday in Lake Michigan.

Interests. He admits he has had no experience in politics, and that, I believe, disqualifies him for the job as mayor."

Other Candidates Speak.

William G. McRae and Tom C. Morris, along with Bond Almond, are seeking the legislative nomination from the late George A. Eckford; G. Seals Aiken and J. V. W. Bentley, who with Ralph L. Ramsey, is seeking the legislative position formerly held by Luther Still; J. Allen Couch and James E. Bowden, seeking the fifth ward aldermanic nomination; John W. Ball Jr. and H. F. Williams, who with Charles M. Ford, are seeking the tenth ward aldermanic nomination, and Louis Geffen, Thomas J. Grogan and Charles S. Brook, running for the board of education from the second ward, also spoke.

"If you elect either Mayor Key or Alderman Murphy you will not better conditions of the city administration," LeCraw told the war veterans. "The people of Atlanta want a complete change in its chief executive. They want the new deal I am offering and they are going to elect me their mayor. Mr. Key stands for the present set-up of Atlanta, and the council are at loggerheads. Mr. Murphy is recognized in the council as an anti-Key leader. I, if elected, the only thing you do is to keep the friction in the city hall. It should be eliminated in the interest of the taxpayers."

McRae charged that the indictment against the Fulton county commissioners in regard to misappropriation of county funds to entertain a meeting of commissioners here was "whitewashed by Judge R. N. Hardeman, an imported judge, who previously had drawn excessive pay for his services in Fulton courts."

He directed a verdict of "not guilty" in a criminal case, which was against all law and against all usual procedure," McRae continued. "One of my two colleagues in the 1931 legislature was with me and I needed his support. Mr. Still, who was elected on the same plank that I was, had a change of heart, and opposed the $1,500,000 savings I was trying to make every year in Fulton county."

Aiken Attacks Humphries.
Aiken was given a good reception as he attacked Judge Humphries' record, asserting he was discourteous to grand juries and petit juries. J. V. Poole, third entrant, also attacked Humphries, asserting he "has served long enough and there should be a change."

Morris appealed to voters to "help me bring back decency into Fulton county and Georgia through repeal of the state bone-dry law and substitution of local option."

Recorder John L. Cone, of the second division, seeking re-nomination, told the audience that he will continue to "give honest, efficient and conscientious service, calling all cases as I see them and not discussing them before they are called in court."

His opponent, Robert R. Poole, asserted "I will not attempt to be judge, jury and prosecuting attorney in cases called before me, but will conduct myself without being sarcastic or discourteous."

PITTMAN LETTER IGNORED IN SPEECH

Talmadge Makes No Mention of Opponent's Questions in Radio Talk.

Governor Talmadge Tuesday ignored a letter from Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, one of his two opponents for re-election, in which Judge Pittman requested that he reply to a number of questions in his radio speech Tuesday night.

The governor made no mention of the letter or the questions contained in it during his address.

The letter follows: "You have advertised that you are to make a radio address on Tuesday night, August 28, and you have asked the people of Georgia to tune in and hear the truth about the issue of this campaign. You advise all to 'prove all things. Hold fast that which is good.' In order that there shall be no misunderstanding in regard to the issues involved, I request that you tell the people of Georgia in this address the truth in answer to the following questions:

"1. Were the statements made by J. J. Mangham in his radio address of Thursday night, August 25, true? If any of them are untrue, will you tell the people of Georgia, which were true and which were untrue?"

"2. Explain your opposition to the national recovery program of our president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, as manifested by your public utterances, as follows:

"(a) Your reference to the cotton plow-plan as 'an act of desolation.' (This statement made by you on June 23, 1933, in Barnesville, Ga., and quoted in the Atlanta Constitution.)

"(b) Your reference to the acreage reduction act which you spoke of it as 'another foolish idea.'

"(c) Your reference to the CCC boys as 'loafers and bums' made June 28, 1933, and reported in The Constitution, June 24, 1933.

"(d) Your reference to farmers borrowing money from the government as 'shiftless folks,' April, 1933.

"(e) Reference to his people's administration as a 'mad house.'

"(f) Your recent statement to representatives of the Georgia Federation of Labor that you are opposed to the entire national recovery program."

"3. Why was the administration of CWA funds taken from your hands in Georgia, and why do you refuse to publish the letter which explains why these funds were taken from your hands?"

"4. Why did you appoint to positions of confidence and trust in our state government, E. E. Lindsey, Charlie Stewart, A. L. Henson, when you knew at the time that all of them had been indicted for larceny, either public or private funds, all crimes involving moral turpitude, all crimes convicted and sentenced?"

"5. Why did you reduce the price of tags for commercial trucks and buses to the flat rate of $3, when Code Section 162 gave you as much authority to reduce all tags proportionate sums, or to strike $10 from each tag, giving the owner of a small car his tag for $1.25, and to the owner of the largest trucks and buses a tag for $1,115.00?"

"There are many other questions that I have propounded during the campaign too numerous to enumerate here, which you have refused to answer, which I feel that you are obligated to tell the people of Georgia about, and I challenge you again to do so tonight."

Headquarters of Judge Pittman Tuesday issued a statement claiming that the candidate would carry not less than 118 counties in the September 12 primary. The statement follows in part:

"Reports coming into Pittman headquarters from practically every county in Georgia indicate that on September 12 Judge Pittman will be elected governor by the largest majority ever given any man for that office. A careful survey of the state reveals that Pittman will carry a minimum of 118 counties, and he is gaining ground every day."

"Reports from south Georgia where it was anticipated that Judge Pittman's strength would be weakest, now indicate that he will carry a great majority of the counties south of Macon."

"It has been very noticeable that the majority of the letters now coming into headquarters are from farmers who are becoming harsh in their criticism of Governor Talmadge for his failure to answer the various charges that have been made against him, and for his failure to lend co-operation to the only national administration that has ever done anything for the man behind the plow."

war-time American director of propaganda and exponent of President Roosevelt's New Deal, polled 49,249 and Milton Young, the 1930 national nominee, 6,395. Justus S. Wardell had 5,204, James E. Waddell, 1,908, W. J. McNichols 611, Dr. Z. T. Malahy 494, and F. E. Downey 419.

Acting Governor Frank P. Merriam, former Iowa who became chief executive on the death of James Rolph Jr. last June, stepped out ahead of this contest for the republican gubernatorial nomination. In 2413 precincts Merriam gleaned 79,106 John R. Quinn, former national commander of the American Legion, 26,783, C. C. Young, former governor, 20,929, and Raymond L. Haight 27,886.

JOHNSON LEADING BLEASE IN CAROLINA

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—For governor in today's democratic primary, 1,080 precincts of 1,474 gave: Cole L. Blease, 52,987; Kemper Cooke 3,128; Olin D. Johnston 61,777; Wyndham M. Manning, 29,075; L. B. Owens, 2,840; Tom B. Pearce, 16,730; James O. Sheppard, 1,630; C. E. Sloan 487. With 682 precincts reported of 1,474, the vote in today's referendum on the liquor question was for legalizing liquor 50,554; against 50,973.

Only meager returns were available from the five congressional contests but in every district the incumbent was leading his opponents upon the face of the available figures.

SENATOR STEPHENS HAS LEAD OVER BILBO

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Unofficial returns from slightly more than half of the 1,611 precincts in today's Mississippi democratic senatorial primary gave Senator Hubert D. Stephens, incumbent, a lead of more than 3,000 votes over his nearest opponent, former Governor Theo G. Bilbo.

The vote in 1,255 of the 1,611 precincts gave: Stephens 56,960, and Bilbo 53,964, indicating the two would enter a run-off primary to decide the junior senatorship on September 13.

Representative Ross A. Collins, of the fifth district who left his seat there to run for the senate, was third man on these returns with 36,854 votes, or 16,500 behind Bilbo.

will bring past-due salaries and pensions to the teachers and pensioners, for which the funds have already been provided but which must await ratification by the legislature."

"I am proud to say that the highway department this year has been able to make contracts with the majority of counties in the state for grading roads in the respective counties," he said in discussing this phase of the campaign.

Held Down Taxes.

"By those contracts with these separate counties, it enabled them to take care of their covints and at the same time hold down the expenses of the counties, and hold down the tax levies for county purposes."

"This policy of aiding the counties of the state could not have been done by the highway department if they had put on a minimum wage scale of 40 cents per hour for common labor on the roads."

"If this policy had been adopted, the counties would also have been required to pay the 40 cents per hour minimum hourly scale when they contracted with the highway department. But no one wanted this 40 cents per hour minimum wage scale for common labor on the roads. The opposition does not even want it."

"If this 40 cents per hour minimum wage scale had been set up, instead of the highway department having $2,000,000 now saved up, it would have been deep in debt and few roads built."

"The tax money should be paid out by the prevailing wage scale in the community where the work is done. This is the rule of the present highway department and is going to stay the rule as long as I am governor of Georgia."

Savings to People.

Governor Talmadge in his review of his official acts during his tenure of office said his executive order cutting the ad valorem tax rate from five to four mills has saved the taxpayers $3,000,000 during 1933 and 1934.

"The $5,000,000 to the automobile owners in two years, and that utility rate cuts by the public service commission have saved $10,000,000 a year in the pockets of the people."

After calling attention to the number of ousted officials and employees now banding against him the governor said that the entire opposition is founded by men who want to be on the pay rolls "of the state with a useless job, and they know old Gene Talmadge won't let them be there."

The governor advised his hearers to "take with a grain of salt the accusations of any dismissed employee." He said that it was only natural for any ousted executive or employee to "cuss their old boss a while."

He made it clear here that he was referring to Mangham as well as to others who have served under him only to lose the places.

"Howls of Dismissed."

"Oh, the howls of a fired official or employee from the state pay roll," he continued, "they never quit, but always leave out that the main thing they are howling for is to get back and get their hands in the public trough."

"Some will even tell you that they did not want the jobs they had, and had to be run down to take them. Since I have been commissioner of agriculture and governor, I have never appointed any official or employee who was not anxious for the job."

"I have a wonderful record in the people when I first picked out for positions. About 98 per cent of them have made good. About 2 per cent have fallen by the wayside. These 2 per cent, of course, want Talmadge defeated, hoping that the other set will put them back on the pay roll."

"Take with a few grains of salt the accusations of any dismissed employee of the state. The same rule also applies to them that applies to a fired clerk, or a fired share-cropper, or a fired tenant. They will cuss their boss a while."

Up to Legislature.

In his discussion of the $3 automobile tag and the suspension of the old public service commission as well as the projected diversion of highway funds to meet the debts due the teachers and the pensioners, the governor made it definitely clear that the legislature must approve his actions to make them permanent.

"The reduction in the price of the automobile tag was a suspension only and I want the people of this state to sound out candidates for the legislature on this all-important matter," he said. "If they are in favor of this and other measures to help the people, then for them to vote against them and let them stay at home and know how it is to be poor folks."

He emphasized that his action in suspending the old public service commission should not be ratified by the general assembly and warned that there is danger of the rate reductions put in by the new commission being wiped out unless his ouster is approved.

"As I have said all along, I knew when I stepped after the big corporations, I would have opposition for re-election," the governor said. "I knew when I suspended that old commission I was bringing the opposition that I now have. But as I have said before, the silence of the opposition on this all important issue is what thunders in this campaign. No word has come from the opposition on that, and their silence can only mean that they are against it."

Power Rate Charges.

The governor again scouted his opponents for charging that the TVA forced the Georgia Power Company to reduce light and power rates.

"It was in the papers in Atlanta on November 29 that the Georgia Power Company had been instructed to reduce its rates," he said. "More than a month later, representatives of the TVA who had heard about the rate fixed by the new Georgia public service commission came to Atlanta and studied the schedule we had put into effect. And they were so satisfied with its fairness that they adopted it as the TVA rate."

"It wouldn't be surprised if the opposition started to claim that the TVA got the telephone companies to reduce their rates and the railroads to reduce their passenger and freight rates and brought about all other reduced rates which have been put into effect by our public service commission."

Summing up the fight on him because of his efforts to lower utility rates, the governor said:

Hardest Job.

"Two years ago, I advocated to the people of this state that our telephone rates, light and power rates, passenger rates, and freight rates should be reduced."

"I told you two years ago how these utility rates were biked up during the war when all other prices were high. I also told you that after the war, when all other prices came down, these rates stayed up, and freight and passenger rates, instead of coming down, were increased."

"My carrying out this campaign pledge to you was the hardest job I had to do. It was the job that guaranteed opposition to me."

"You will remember that I told you about it last year when I spoke all over the state. I predicted then that opposition was sure to come."

"I also predicted to you that it would come, not as a real issue, but in the form of the scuttie fish, to muddle the waters and try to blind and fool the people of this state."

"I have given you my record of the last 18 months," the governor said as he began his summation in concluding his address. "If these were my pledges two years ago you know it."

Proof of Record.

"The proof of this record is written on every tax receipt in the state of Georgia. It is written on the front and rear of every automobile that travels our highways."

"The proof of this record is written on every light and power bill, every phone bill, every passenger and bus ticket, and every freight bill in the state of Georgia."

"Can you expect the opposition to challenge the above issues? Would they have any chance of getting votes if they would take issue on the above accomplishments?

"Knowing they cannot challenge the accomplishment of the last 18 months, they are driven to the desperate course of talking about everything else except the real issues of this campaign."

"They have printed tons and tons and tons of literature, and scattered it all over the state."

"They can have radio speeches every half hour. They can have hundreds of lawyers going over this state, ballyhooing the public, but thank God they can't wipe out what old Talmadge has saved the people."

Ask Endorsement.

"If I have made life's burdens easier for you, I ask at your hands an endorsement term."

"If I have tried, and made an honest effort to carry out these campaign pledges, I ask an endorsement term."

"It means something to realize that the working people of the state have confidence in you. That belief is what strengthens your backbone when you have to make a decision, and all roads look wrong."

"The confidence of the people of Georgia in me has enabled me to stand up when it looked dark."

"But we pressed on, and I am glad to say that we have accomplished more, and been able to fulfill the campaign pledges far more than I dreamed."

The speech was heard by Talmadge clubs all over the state in addition to the thousands who heard it in their homes. A number of county organizations and county-wide meetings in their largest cities while in Atlanta there were radio parties in all the ward and district organizations.

Textile Workers Stage Anti-Strike Protest

LEWISTON, Maine, Aug. 28.—(UP)—Lewiston's nearly 6,000 textile workers demonstrated in vigorous fashion late today that they want nothing to do with the nation-wide strike planned by the United Textile Workers of America.

The operatives seized and destroyed scores of posters advertising a strike organization meeting scheduled for this hall.

Mayor Robert J. Wiseman promptly revoked the permit for the rally which had been issued to J. S. Poirier, of Waterville, asserted organizer for the U. T. W. A.

It has been estimated that only 400 textile workers in Lewiston are affiliated with the union.

"MONEY IN THEIR POCKETS."

The significant statement is made in an Associated Press dispatch on business conditions in the agricultural sections of the southern part of the state that "South Georgians have money in their pockets again, and they are buying clothes, opening bank accounts and riding trains and buses."

Last year, for the first time since 1929, these farmers made fair profits from most of their crops, but most of this money went toward the payment and reduction of long-standing debts. The fine profits on the crops already marketed this year have enabled them to further reduce their debts, both to the government and to their bankers, and have a liberal supply of "spending money" left. The revenues from the crops still to be marketed will put most of these farmers on "easy street" to an extent they have not known for many years.

Under these conditions, it is not surprising to learn further that "new automobiles are appearing on the highways and old models which have reposed under sheds or in garages for several years are back in action."

What has happened in the sections of Georgia where early maturing crops are produced will be repeated in the middle and northern portions of the state, where the bulk of cotton and grain crops are grown. Even if the farmers in these sections get no more for their cotton than the 12 cents government loan, they will be in practically as good shape as their south Georgia brothers. In all probability, they will receive 14 or 15 cents a pound and their financial condition will be bettered accordingly.

With the farmers once again in possession of money to spend, the beneficial results will spread to every business interest in the state. A farmer is never a hoarder, as indicated by the report that those of south Georgia are "buying clothes, automobiles and riding in trains and buses." They are spending their new revenues for the comforts and luxuries they have had to go without for so long.

So far as Georgia is concerned, every indication points to the return of good times with the seasonal revival of business in the fall. The most encouraging aspect of this improvement in conditions is that it will be based not merely on optimism and credit, but on new millions of dollars brought into the state through the sale at good prices of its agricultural production for the year.

NEW ORLEANS GROWS WEARY.

The action of a group of 100 leading citizens of New Orleans in urging their fellow citizens to "join in preserving orderly procedure at the polls when the Long and Walmisley factions go to the mat in the forthcoming congressional primary" indicates that the people of the city are finally growing weary of the continued turmoil and unfavorable publicity from which they have suffered of late.

The quiescent manner in which the citizens not only of New Orleans but of the balance of the state have permitted rival political factions to wash their dirty linen in public, with one camp protected by militia and the other by heavily augmented police forces, has been one of the most surprising aspects of a malodorous situation.

The good name of the city and of the state has been dragged in the mud, partial martial law has been clamped on the south's largest city, and governmental conditions generally have been thrown into confusion. Through it all the citizens of New Orleans have gone calmly about their business, seemingly little concerned with a situation containing immediate threat to the peace of the community.

In other cities conditions far less aggravated than those now existing in New Orleans have brought about indignation protests from outraged citizens, with the result that political bosses who have engaged in bitter controversy without due regard to the rights and safety of the public have soon been brought to see the error of their ways.

It is to be hoped that the organization of a group of 100 leading New Orleans citizens, composed of leaders in civic, professional and social ranks, will prove the first step by the people of the city toward putting an end to unseemly political bickering of which the country has grown tired.

CONSTITUTION DAY.

Plans announced by National Constitution Day committee, composed of representatives of the outstanding national organizations of the country, call for an observance September 17 of the 147th anniversary of the signing of the American constitution that will carry into every home in the country a greater appreciation of the instrument upon which the government is founded.

In announcing its plans the committee specifies that—

The sole purpose of the movement is to bring about a better understanding by the American people of the great fundamental principles of the constitution under which the United States has assumed a leading position among the nations of the world, socially, economically and politically, while similar instruments in other nations have crumbled.

Our American constitution is unquestionably the most vital mandate of the American people in its entire history, and national-wide observance of the anniversary of its signing is both a fitting and proper expression of continuing faith in the principles set forth by our forefathers in knitting 13 colonies together, yet at the same time preserving the individual rights and liberties of the people and the states.

The central celebration will be held in Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, and hundreds of local celebrations will be held throughout the country, in all of which representatives of patriotic and civic organizations will participate. The addresses to be delivered in Carpenters' Hall, Philadelphia, the meeting place of the Continental Congress, will be broadcast over a nationwide radio hookup. The speakers will include the heads of the American Legion, the Sons of the American Revolution, the United States Flag Association and other nationally known men and women.

Constitution Day should be observed especially in the schools of every community in the country. The recent investigations of a committee of the American Bar Association revealed a lamentable ignorance on the part of the American public on the principles and ideals of the document which is the cornerstone of our government structure. It was found that the students in our institutions of higher education are more familiar with the tenets of communism, socialism and other radical governmental structures than with those promulgated in the constitution of their own country. Even the teachers in many of these institutions have only a scanty idea of what the constitution stands for.

The observance of Constitution Day should be given equal prominence with that of Independence Day. Certainly in its effect on the young, in keeping them aware of the significance and fundamental groundwork of democratic government, the former is the more important.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Gypsies Talk.

Gypsies, like Arab sheiks, look far less romantic in reality than they do on the silver screen. When I was told in Budapest that a large assembly of gypsies was being held on the borders of Hungary and Rumania, I went in search of them. In the end I spent a whole day with them as guests of their king, the majestically Michael, King Michael wears rings in his ears, and bracelets on his hands and feet. Like several of the other members of his tribe, I noticed that he had his face painted and powdered. It is the male who goes in for make-up among the gypsies. In some of the villages which they traverse on their eternal wanderings in eastern Europe there are signs up which read: "The Tsiganes must perform compulsory labor." This means that the women go out and do a day's work in the fields. Then they stay home, that is to say, with the caravan. In compensation the women of the tribe have the right to smoke big black cigars. If there is money for cigars, they lie along the roads and in the villages for tobacco leaves which they chew, like their sisters in the U. S. A. masticate chewing gum. And boy, how those damsels can spit! Straight as a die.

Kidnap Legend.

I asked King Michael what the aim was of the endless perigrations of the kypsy tribes. Are you really going somewhere, or is the going an end in itself?

He said gypsies hated to stay long in the same place. They were nomads, he said. Now we go to a fair. Then again we move away from a country because it is too inhospitable. We simply keep up camp and move. It doesn't matter where we go.

"But," I said, "how do you do for passports?" thinking of my own frequent difficulties with those things and wondering if I couldn't pass myself as a gypsy.

"We don't have passports," he said. "That is why we are being hustled along from one country to the other. Some of us are citizens of this or that country, though, and these men have some kind of a paper, which the authorities verify from time to time."

"Are gypsies compelled to serve in the armies of the countries of which they are citizens?" I asked.

"Sure," he replied, "but they don't. Gypsies are Christians," he added, "we don't in self-defense either?" I persisted.

"If you harm nobody, nobody will harm you," retorted the king. If the course of our conversation, King Michael showed himself indignant over the kind of rumors that are spread about gypsies. Proudly, he stretched out his hands to a swarm of kids around him. "Look," he said, "do we need to rob other people of their children? No, no, no, we have a hard enough time feeding all the little mouths that you see here. The old story is a base slander," he added, "and if you are a writer, tell your readers so. I tell you, we are maligned by something that is nothing but a fairy tale."

I promised him I would.

Intrigues Around The Throne.

King Michael considers it his life-task to bring some amelioration in the lot of the gypsies and to this end he thinks it necessary that all the tribes should be united. He explained that he had made journeys to Spain, Denmark, Germany and Belgium, to persuade the gypsies to unite, or rather roaming those countries, to try themselves to the gypsies of Rumania, Hungary, Turkey, Serbia, etc. "The trouble is that," he told me, "we are not united. We are not by internal strike. When I was in Poland," he went on, "where 10,000 gypsies live, an adventurer by the name of Rincel tried to stop me from speaking to the gypsies. You probably heard of this man Rincel."

I had to admit that this was the first I had ever heard of his name. "Well," went on King Michael, "it doesn't matter. He is a good-for-nothing. He proclaimed himself king of the Polish gypsies. In reality he is only a vulgar horse-thief. Before he gets much older, Rincel is going to have some trouble," Michael assured me.

"What is going to happen?" I asked.

"I am going to catch him," he replied, "and cut him slowly to pieces. Then we will force his relatives to eat the pieces of his body. That ought to teach him not to set himself as king."

I agreed that this procedure might have a deterrent effect.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

THE TEACHING OF RESUSCITATION MAKES SLOW PROGRESS.

Southern correspondent describes a drowning, one and one-half hours elapsing from the time of submersion to the time the body was brought to the doctor's office. Correspondent says doctor was quoted as saying that the victim had been strung up by the heels immediately upon rescue from the water, he might have been saved. Correspondent says nearly everybody in the vicinity believed that the water was squeezed or drained out of the lungs of the victim of submersion has a better chance to survive.

The correspondent goes on to give me some more dirt about the tragic affair. He declares that the doctor who deplored the fact that the victim's rescuers had not strung him up by the heels used a pump to make some kind of show of trying, and the gadget would be likely to impress people of limited intelligence more than would an actual effort at resuscitation.

None of these spectacular antics is justifiable in such an emergency. The only first aid likely to prove successful in Schenck's case is prompt resuscitation. This can be as effectively applied by a child as by a professional doctor. The best doctor in the country, provided the child has been properly educated, should be a stigma on the name of any bystander who is present when a person is rescued from submersion, yet fails to give the victim the benefit of artificial respiration immediately. That sort of ignorance is indeed a disgrace.

I have a booklet on resuscitation, illustrated, which teaches any one the correct method, and surely every man, woman and child should know exactly how to proceed to save life in such emergencies. If you wish a copy of the booklet send 10 cents and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Reading the southern correspondent's letter I wonder whether he has not misrepresented the physician's part in the tragedy. It is more than

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

TEXTILE TWIDDLING WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The cotton textile mill owners have a very good reason for sitting around, twiddling their thumbs, in the face of the impending strike. They know something.

Their figures of stocks on hand are a never made public, but are circulated privately among leaders in the trade. These show that cotton textile manufacturers had on hand a few days ago enough finished gray goods to supply demand for a normal month.

In fact, their stocks are so high that they would probably have sought a continuance of the NRA order curtailing cotton production, had they not suspected a strike was coming.

Furthermore, the old order curtailing production expired last Saturday. So they have a week of unlimited production now at hand before the strike breaks. If they operate at capacity, they can boost production 33 1-3 per cent above what it has been, thus piling up additional stocks.

DANGERS These manufacturing stocks are at least equalled by additional stocks in the hands of the garment makers, dyers, retailers et al. (The gray goods include only those which have not yet been dyed.)

This means that, as far as the public is concerned, there is at least a two-month supply of cotton goods at hand for the strike. The price probably will go up, but not very much, unless the silk, woolen and rayon workers also walk out. In that possibility lies the main importance of the strike, both to the industry and the public.

silks, woolen and rayon goods continue to be manufactured, the average buyer automatically will accept these substitutes. Habits thus formed sometimes remain after strikes are over. The experience in the coal industry ten years ago is proof of that. Repeated strikes encouraged the developments of substitutes, so that the coal operators never have recovered their markets, even to this day.

HAYSEEDS O. Henry's assumption that New York is the biggest hick town in the world was fully justified by the way Wall Street bit on the Angus pamphlet.

Competent authorities contend that this little book, written by an English economist, had more to do with the recent stock market zig-zag than anything else. The title of it is "The Coming American Boom" and its thesis is that there is so much money piled up in banks now that, at the first sign of restored confidence, speculation will run riot.

The Wall Streeters read it, decided the boom was here, and shot prices up. A few days later, they began to discover minor passages in the pamphlet suggesting a lack of fundamental knowledge regarding the American financial system.

But the funniest part is that the main thesis is old. It was first pointed out publicly by our own federal reserve board in a monthly bulletin issued six months ago. Wall Street never noticed it.

All of which certainly shows that you farmers out west are missing your opportunities, trying to make a living on the farm, when you could go to Wall Street and sell gold bricks to the bulls and bears.

FORTUNE The prospective new governor of the federal reserve board, Marriner Eccles, got into the New Deal in a peculiar way.

The inside story is that Stuart Chase, the well-known financial authority, was going to make a speech in Eccles' home town out west and Eccles came out to hear him. Chase was late, so the presiding officer called on Eccles, the local banker, to make a speech.

When Chase arrived, he found Eccles making a better speech than he had intended to make. He was so impressed that he reported Eccles to Professor Raymond Moley. Shortly thereafter, when the administration was looking around for a treasury assistant not connected with any New York banking interests, Moley recommended Eccles.

His treasury connection has been so satisfactory that Treasury Secretary Morgenthau is strongly supporting him for the reserve board job.

LIBERTY LEAGUE The powers behind the new American Liberty League are planning to come out soon with a new list of backers showing a wide distribution of support. They would like to get some prominent names west of the Alleghenies, like those of Jim Reed, Newton Baker and outstanding people of that type.

Incidentally, you may have noticed that, at the same time the name of Al Smith was announced as a backer of the Liberty League, Al's old political ally, Boss Hague, of New Jersey, publicly announced himself for Roosevelt in '36. Hague was last on the Roosevelt band wagon last time, but is first this time.

NOTES The Richberg report on New Deal progress is going to be made a campaign textbook for democratic congressional candidates.

Commerce Secretary Roper's sobering speech on the New Deal attitude toward business took the same moderate tone as speeches by Chairman Kennedy, of the securities commission, and Assistant Commerce Secretary Dickinson. There will be more of them.

A number of the New York speculators have been quietly going in for cheap gold and silver stocks on the Toronto exchange. The extent of their operations is indeterminate, but each purchase represents a flight of capital.

The maximum number of workers in all branches of the textile industry was 1,096,000 in 1929, which indicates that the current popular estimate of 800,000 is somewhat large.

The current forgotten man appears to be Budget Director Douglas, once the best-informed New Dealer, now the least noticed.

The One Who Must Pay for the Wreck Has The Right To Forbid Foolish Driving

By Robert Quillen

When free people are doing anything that must inevitably lead to their ruin, they resent and resist any government effort to make them sensible.

But when folly has finished them, they turn to the government—which means the whole people—and say: "It is your business to save us."

Since that happens more and more frequently and the cost to taxpayers mounts higher and higher, the people must soon find an answer to this question: "If we have an obligation to save the victims of folly, have we not also the right to restrain those who would be foolish things?"

Consider, for example, the man who would build a ship factory. He knows the ship business; he knows there is money in it. All he needs is the capital to build and equip a factory, and then, assuming that he can sell his product, he will make himself rich.

Now there are two methods by which he can get the capital he needs. He can sell stock or borrow from banks. In either case he will be using other people's money.

So he gets the money and builds the factory and then he makes a dreadful discovery. The country already has ten times the number of ship factories it needs.

He can't sell his product. Or, if he does sell it, he takes business from another factory. If he can't sell ships, he goes broke. If he does sell ships, he helps to break the other fellow.

In either case, banks or stockholders take the loss. By building a factory that wasn't needed, the man lost other people's money.

He has a right to lose his own, perhaps. But why shouldn't the law forbid the borrowing of other people's money to engage in unnecessary production?

For that matter, why shouldn't the law—the whole people— forbid the building of any plant for additional production unless a national check-up shows that it is needed?

Surely the man who must pay the piper has a right to call the tune. (Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

WHEAT IS DAMAGED BY CANADIAN FROST

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—(P)—Frosts damaged wheat crops in central and northern Alberta and parts of Saskatchewan last week, says a report issued today by the dominion bureau of statistics.

Across Canada, harvesting is under way and some sections benefited last week from rain.

likely that the physician used an inhalator is merely an inflatable bag containing a mixture of oxygen with 10 to 15 per cent of carbon dioxide. No pump of any kind. The gas bag is applied over the victim's nose and mouth, so that the oxygen and carbon dioxide (called carboxygen) is inhaled, while the manual pressure-pressure respiration is being carried on without even a moment's interruption. This supplementary use of the inhalator increases the chances of success for the carbon dioxide the victim is made to inhale by proper pressure is the natural stimulant of the respiratory function.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Long's Motives NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A long has been compared to Adolf Hitler, but to give the Kingfish his due, it must be admitted that he is quite imitating and begins to roll his own ideas when it comes to motives. His methods are painful but in everything that I have read about Hitler it is conceded that his only purpose is to help his country. There is no such nonsense as that in Huey Long's scheme. The dictatorship of the Kingfish in Louisiana is strictly personal and the political staff is composed entirely of sympathetic spirits who can be counted on to give the heartiest cooperation at all times. Much of this following comes from the underworld of New Orleans and the adjoining parishes of St. Bernard and Jefferson in which the gambling industry is an important source of graft.

For the moment, Huey has closed the gambling houses in New Orleans, proper and it may seem odd that a man who cracks down on the gambling business can command the support of underworld characters. But the explanation is that the New Orleans underworld has been an unconquered province. It belonged to the city administration of New Orleans and the graft which it paid was paid to Huey's rivals, in St. Bernard and Jefferson, on the other hand, the Long machine had had control and he did not interfere with the gambling there when he invaded New Orleans.

Peace Preferred Gamblers like to see the Kingfish in power. They are a fortunate lot. They are not proprietors of the dice and keno parlors and the houses in New Orleans have no strong preference in bosses. If the city administration cannot protect them from ruinous interference they would be glad to be conquered by the other side. When the fight is over, no matter which side wins, they will start dealing again and in the meantime they regarded themselves as the unoffending victims of a cruel strife in which they had no part. Such is the temperament of New Orleans, with its Latin-American and continental European character, that prostitution has always been looked upon as necessary. And, of course, this is an industry which must pay graft, too. If, and when, the Long machine wins, New Orleans will have to be turned to the loyal workers in the underworld who fought the good fight for the dictator. It is a prize worth a battle.

According to all my reading, Adolf Hitler has never shown any tolerance for vice in any form. On the contrary, he cleaned up a very dirty city in Berlin which was rapidly becoming a sort of German Paris or German New Orleans. Huey Long, on the other hand, when he was powerful in New Orleans, did not mind a little of the familiar way of things and it will be noted that his present onslaught is timed so as to produce useful political scandal against the city administration in the impending election.

Dictators Vary Hitler is described as an abstemious man who does not drink, smoke or even eat meat. Huey, however, lives very luxuriously and has been known to get notoriously tight as, for instance, the night when he was popped in the eye by the memorable Battle of the Gods' Room in the back-country.

He is a man who, when he is not vetting seeking, he sleeps in his clothes on humble cab floors but his town house is a mansion.

There is no doubt that if the Kingfish had the same motives that Hitler has he could be a great help to the ordinary people of Louisiana. He is a level-headed man and he is equal to him. But while he sways the unfortunate rabble with his promises to divide up the wealth of the rich his political followers are kept in a state of strictly nominal jobs and he is constantly creating more state jobs in order to keep his workers loyal.

No Figures There is no getting on at the figures on the pay roll of Huey Long's political machine or the amounts which are stolen from the treasury indirectly in graft taken from contractors who perform work for the state and hike their bids to compensate themselves. But the money which is squandered this way is enough to help the people appreciably if it is spent for poor people.

The dictator's whole attitude toward the state was expressed perfectly by his brother, Earl, one afternoon when the pair of them were ordered off the floor of the lower house of the legislature for lobbying. Huey left the chamber but Earl ran down to the speaker's desk and shouted at his nose at the statesmen. Then he put his face to the microphone, pursed his lips and blew a salute of contempt to the representatives of the people of Louisiana.

REAL LOVE MATCH SEEN FOR ROYALTY

more so because an official denial was entered here over the week-end.

The court circular tonight, however, brought confirmation of reports and the capital, reverting from its surprise, was soon discussing the royal romance with all signs of approval.

The tall, blue-eyed, handsome young English prince and his fiancée have many tastes in common.

Among them is love for music. The prince is an accomplished pianist who plays classical and modern music with equal facility while the princess has been schooled as an amateur musician.

No Plans Yet Made. The princess also likes dancing and shooting—two amusements of which Prince George, as well, is very fond.

A thoroughly modern girl in every respect, the young Grecian princess likewise engages enthusiastically in outdoor sports, another trait calculated to endear her to England's sport-loving people.

The close friend of Prince George said tonight that he gave no indication before he left England of any intention of becoming engaged.

The Prince of Wales, now holidaying at Biarritz, was one of the first to get into the secret, it was said. It was understood that no plans whatsoever have yet been made for the marriage.

Before the ceremony can occur the prince must give his formal consent by an order in council under the terms of the royal personages' marriage act.

It was assumed that the prince would accompany Princess Marie to see her mother and father in Greece before returning to England.

Princess Is Linquist. The princess, who was educated in Athens, Paris and London, speaks fluent French, English, Greek, Russian and German and is talented in music and painting.

She inherited all the beauty and charm of her Russian mother and the pleasing personal qualities of her father, who was a brother of the late King Constantine of Greece.

Prince George's reputation for enjoying social life is widely known. One of his delights is to escape from routine affairs of schedule when on tours with his staff, and in the manner of his life, he is the Prince of Wales has a genuine good time.

Under the name "Lieutenant Windsor" he caused a flurry in Hollywood's movie world once that he still talked about his visit to the United States on H. M. S. Durban and when it anchored at San Pedro, the port of Los Angeles, Prince George went to a U. S. L. ship that was in 1928.

Friend of Fairbanks. He had a glorious time, if the word of those who saw him can be taken for it. He was entertained by the film world as royally as royalty could be entertained; but it was some time before they discovered who the charming Lieutenant Windsor really was.

Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford were his most frequent hosts. That was at a time when "Pickfair" was the social center of movieland. The couple were the object of his special attention, and the movie gods especially reported that she was swept off her feet before becoming aware of his identity.

Prince George has been a center of matrimonial rumors almost as much as his brother, the Prince of Wales. Whenever he has traveled—and he is widely traveled—he has set off a feminine heart's fluttering, and rumors, followed that he might marry this, that or the other eligible young lady.

He is an exceptionally good dancer as much as to the partners he chooses. But especially of late he has been more than a social light, making long journeys on behalf of the crown. His recent comprehensive tour of South Africa and adjacent territory resulted in a rousing welcome wherever he made his appearance, an ambassador of British good will.

RATE PLEA SUPPORTED BY SHORT RAIL LINES

Small Roads File Petition Asking Increase in Schedule.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The American Short Line Railroad Association, composed of hundreds of small railroads, today filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission in support of the rate increase plea of the larger carriers.

The association set forth virtually the same reasons for asking increases as those laid down by the Class No. 1 carriers yesterday in their application for permission to increase rates on virtually all commodities and classes of freight except to raise approximately $170,000,000 a year.

The plea of the short lines would result in several million dollars a year more but no estimate was given. The petition contended itself with setting forth the prospect of increased costs and backed the advances requested by the major carriers.

The petition of the small railroads informed the commission that 28 per cent of the membership of the association failed to earn operating expenses and taxes in 1933 and that 55 per cent failed to earn their fixed charges. It had, it said, operating expenses of approximately $1,247,000 in excess of their operating income and lacked more than $6,500,000 of earning their fixed charges.

There are 328 Class No. 2 and Class No. 3 railroads in the short line association. They represent 11,410 miles of track. Last year, 788 miles were authorized for abandonment, largely because of inability to earn expenses.

It was estimated that 67 per cent of the short lines would fail to earn operating expenses in 1934 and 80 per cent would fail to earn their fixed charges because of necessary increases in operating expenses.

General Yet Unnamed By Salvation Army

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Opening skirmishes in the Salvation Army's fight to choose its new leader were held behind tightly closed doors today.

In elaborate secrecy the 47 delegates to the meeting of the high council charged with selecting successor to General Edward J. Higgins, of England, met for eight hours in the North London council hall but failed, it was announced at the session's end, to reach the question of nominations.

Today's meeting discussed only "formal matters," it was stated, but the election of the new general was expected to be the first business tomorrow.

ROY DORSEY TO DIRECT COCA-COLA ADVERTISING

Appointment of Roy Dorsey as advertising manager of the Coca-Cola Company is announced in the current issue of the Red Barrel, the Coca-Cola house magazine. Turner Jones, who has been both advertising manager and vice president in charge of marketing, will give all of his time to the duties of the latter position.

Mr. Dorsey, former solicitor of the city court of Atlanta, has been connected with Coca-Cola for about seven years. He has held regional posts at Dallas, New Orleans and Chicago.

Mr. Jones has been vice president in charge of Coca-Cola advertising since 1925.

OIL TANK BLAST WRECKS CAMPANA

Five Million Damage Is Done in Argentine City by 12 Tank Explosions.

CAMPANA, Argentina, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Twelve huge oil tanks exploded in deflating succession here today, shaking Campana and its neighboring villages for 30 miles around to their foundations, spreading flaming death and destruction over wide areas and causing damage estimated at $5,000,000.

Tonight four persons were dead, two were missing, two were gravely injured, 12 had suffered serious burns, 70 had been treated at hospitals and an estimated 200 others had received treatment at homes and drugstores.

While firemen from Buenos Aires, 40 miles away, and other nearby cities battled to quell the flames leaping from veritable lakes of oil, gasoline spread over Campana, the adjoining Parana river and the near-by swamps, marines aided police in efforts to evacuate residents of the town.

Every Building Damaged.

Damage to the refining plant of the National Oil Company, subsidiary of Standard Oil, was estimated at around $2,500,000, while damage to the town of Campana itself was expected to run as high as $1,000,000.

Virtually every building suffered broken windows, cracked ceilings and walls or lost their roofs as the series of thundering explosions shook the town and its vicinity like an earthquake.

Inhabitants of Campana, as well as those in nearby towns, were terrified, rushing into the streets screaming "The tanks! The tanks!"

A spectacular blaze from three square blocks of burning oil shot pillars of fire and smoke several hundred yards into the air, adding to the panic.

Inhabitants Flee.

A strong wind blew up tonight, however, to swing the blaze around to

Man Burns Factory In Attack on Bedbugs

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Plagued with bedbugs, Janos Spitzer, night watchman in a large textile factory, set fire to his bed last night to revenge himself on the intruders.

As a consequence the factory caught fire, two firemen were severely injured and the whole neighborhood was placed in a panic. The factory and all the bedbugs in it were destroyed.

Spitzer was arrested and charged with the double offense of sleeping while on duty and unintentional incendiarism.

FEAR OF LOOSE TONGUE PUT GANGSTER ON SPOT

ST. PAUL, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Homer Van Meter, Dillinger lieutenant, died under a hail of police lead inspired by his own associates who feared his rascous associations with women new bank raids.

This story, disclosed today by a reliable source, gave police a fresh insight into the life of the gangster. Frank Cullen, who led the detail of officers who shot Van Meter down in a blind alley here Thursday night, said it would be investigated carefully. Other leads have proved fruitless.

The latest report linked George "Baby Face" Nelson, much sought, much feared Dillinger associate, and several others in a new plot to make simultaneous swift raids on two northern Minnesota banks to replenish depleted coffers and then flee to a hideout reported to be located near the Canadian border.

Other reported members of the gang said to have given police the tip that led to Van Meter's death were John Hamilton, Dillinger lieutenant often reported dead; Alvin Karpis and Fred Barker, sought for the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer abduction here, and Arthur "Doc" Barker, brother of Fred.

Northern Minnesota banks were said to have been chosen for the forage because of the nearness to the reported hideout and to the border. Nelson was reported recently to have been seen, apparently "looking over" a bank in Virginia, Minn. The chief of police in that northern Minnesota mining center admitted he was checking the report. A bank in Duluth was said to have been chosen for the second raid.

Fears among the members of the gang, said to number 10, including several recruits, that Van Meter's predilection for women might lead to his capture and subsequent revelation of the plans, every detail of which he knew, were reported to have prompted the decision to tell police where they would get him.

The source of this information added that the plans had apparently been shelved temporarily until "heat" resulting from Van Meter's slaying had died down.

Meanwhile Chief Cullen announced that Opal Meliga, St. Paul waitress known to have been friendly with the slain gangster, who has been held by police since he was killed, would be returned to the Sauk Center, Minn., school for girls as a parole violator.

Cullen also said today a check of $1,394 found on Van Meter's body had failed to connect it with kidnap ransom money. A Minneapolis attorney representing a Fort Wayne, Ind., attorney administrator of Van Meter's estate, said he would claim the money.

The sewing departments of the county relief offices also are engaged in making 15,000 hand towels of mixed cotton and linen, one of which will be attached to the belt of each uniform.

UNIFORMS BEING MADE FOR CANNERY WORKERS

Cutting and stitching on 10,000 uniforms for Georgia employees in government canneries has begun in county relief offices, it was learned Tuesday at FERA headquarters, 10 Forsyth building. The uniforms will be worn by laborers and supervisors engaged in the project to can drouth area beef cattle for winter consumption by families on relief rolls.

Material and patterns for the uniforms have been issued from state headquarters of the women's department in the FERA office. White caps and aprons of heavy drilling will be worn by the workers, while the supervisors will wear long-sleeved smocks and blue caps of the same material. The uniforms are being made in three sizes each for women and men.

The sewing departments of the county relief offices also are engaged in making 15,000 hand towels of mixed cotton and linen, one of which will be attached to the belt of each uniform.

PERMANENT PWA FAVORED BY ICKES

Secretary Indicates He Will Ask Congress for Further Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes told reporters today he favored a permanent federal system of public works to be created after the present public works administration dies next June 16.

Ickes said he expected to make a recommendation for a further public works appropriation by the next congress but it was too far in advance to give any indication as to how much would be requested and the scope of work to be undertaken.

The secretary said he did not know of any recommendation he might have made for continuance of PWA for two more years after June 16. Donald R. Richberg of the executive council, advised President Roosevelt in a report on the recovery program Sunday that Ickes had recommended two more years' existence for public works.

"I think PWA ought to be a permanent function of government," Ickes asserted. "There ought to be federal public works, although there is some question as to whether loans ought to be continued for non-federal developments. That would depend on conditions as they develop."

"The federal government's definite program of federal public works with states and communities, of some instances, I do not think PWA should continue financing indefinitely, however, such projects as local paving, city halls and so forth."

"There ought to be an equitable contribution from states and communities."

REVISED PROGRAM TO INCREASE WORK PLANNED BY NRA

sands of men to work through a new economy of stimulated production and consumption made possible by greater purchasing power.

Another work seek to open additional jobs through changes in hours and wages such as was done in the cotton garment code. The new approach would be made easier under the realignment of all codes into 22 groups which was announced yesterday.

With the fall season almost here, it was believed that some plan might be ready for presentation to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., when Johnson confers with the chief executive on the reorganization program. This meeting is less than two weeks away.

Johnson To Boss.

With Mr. Roosevelt's new expression of confidence in Johnson, there appeared no doubt that the latter would have a major voice in shaping the new policies which are to be perfected not only to increase the number of jobs but also to form the basis for permanent legislation.

Johnson probably will be named as chairman of the board which is expected to be set up to run NRA until congress enacts new legislation. His increase in salary will remove any objection as to the cost of living here and allow him to stay on indefinitely.

At NRA today it was said that the salary boost to $15,000 was made in order to give the administrator a pay more nearly in line with his worth. Johnson himself set the $6,000 figure when he became administrator more than a year ago.

The new salary places Johnson on a plane with cabinet officers and makes him one of the highest paid officials in the government. Actually Johnson will receive $14,250, the government's five per cent pay cut paring it down that much.

At the same time, however, Morgenthau explained, while the national debt has been increased, the nation also has increased its assets which may be turned into cash and applied to debt reduction.

On March 4, 1933, he continued, the treasury cash balance amounted to $200,000,000. By June 30, 1934, this balance had risen to nearly $1,800,000,000. If this gain in cash is deducted from the gross increase in public debt, the net increase becomes $4,400,000,000, he said.

In another cash drawer, Morgenthau explained, is the $2,500,000,000 gold profit. It is segregated in the so-called stabilization fund authorized by congress as a weapon against violent fluctuations of American currency abroad and to effectuate the new national silver policy. Ultimately, Morgenthau said, the treasury expected this profit to flow back into the stream of other revenues and further reduce the national debt.

Large Reserve.

"We have then, in effect, two cash drawers in the treasury—one containing our working balance, which is $1,600,000,000 larger than on March 4 last year, and the other containing $2,800,000,000 representing profit on devaluation," the treasury head went on.

"But in addition to the cash drawers we also have a safe. And in that safe we have some very valuable securities—securities consisting of notes and other obligations held by various agencies in which the government has an interest."

Assets Classified.

He classified these assets into two groups:

1. Agencies wholly owned by the government and wholly financed by the government such as the RFC, the PWA, the export-import banks, etc., which enjoyed a net increase in assets of $1,065,000,000 between March 4, 1933, and June 30, 1934.
2. An interest of $768,000,000 by the government in partly owned government corporations and new tangible assets in the form of "better roads, better housing, huge new dams, etc., which have increased the real wealth of the country."

Morgenthau said future expenditures will depend upon developments which cannot be foreseen at this time.

"But," he continued, "even if the deficit for the new year, exclusive of drouth relief expenditures, should reach five billions instead of two, the combined deficit for the period of 15 months from January of 1934 to June of 1935 would still be no more than the eight billions on which we originally planned."

Concluding his remarks, the treasury head invited listeners who have any questions to ask about the nation's finances to write him.

BLACK SEES SOUTHEAST AS FORTUNE'S FAVORITE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Eugene R. Black, who until recently headed the federal reserve system, thinks "everybody in the southeast ought to thank the Lord every night" that he lives in this section.

Black, who returned to his old post as governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta on resigning as head of the entire system, was here to confer with bankers on speeding government loans for working capital and industry.

"I have just returned from a trip in the west where I went through the drouth area and saw those extreme situations," Black said in an interview. "I have just ridden with my horse to Washington to Atlanta where I saw pastures, the apple orchards, the tobacco fields of Virginia. They all looked like Tigris and Euphrates."

"The same was true of the cotton and tobacco fields of North and South Carolina, and the same was true of Tennessee and Georgia."

"I think even the south-east in federal reserve branches at Nashville, Birmingham, New Orleans and Jacksonville will make for wider distribution."

As to industrial loans, Black said

Plaque Placed in Spot Where Huey Got Shiner

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(UP)—A plaque commemorating the "Battle of Sands Point" has been placed in the men's washroom at the fashionable Sands Point Club, where Senator Huey P. Long was socked a year ago this week, according to Ziti's theatrical newspaper.

Ziti publishes a photograph of Tommy Dorsey, leader of the orchestra at the club, standing beside the plaque, and there is ample evidence that the picture was taken in the room where Long was given a black eye.

Officials of the club denied, however, that the plaque has been hung in the washroom. Owen P. White, of Colliers Weekly, who instituted the movement for a medal after the club incident, said he had been traveling in the south and did not know where the plaque had been placed. George De Zavays, designer of the plaque, was without definite knowledge.

under the new law federal reserve banks can make initially $280,000,000 of such loans and as these are paid back others can be made. He declared that establishment of offices in federal reserve branches at Nashville, Birmingham, New Orleans and Jacksonville will make for wider distribution.

F. D. R. HEARS REPORT ON CONDITIONS ABROAD

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today studied an intimate report on the involved European economic situation, termed "critical" in places, and chatted during the afternoon with his friend, Governor Lehman, of New York.

Governor Lehman, whose renomination by the democrats is considered certain, left without comment. The summer White House described the visit as strictly personal and social. Mr. Roosevelt, in his usual eager search for latest developments, listened intently to a report by Alfred J. Pearson, Drake University economist, showing a generally improved situation abroad, but a "critical" one in Germany.

Pearson, a former minister to Finland, recently returned after a trip in which he interviewed Adolf Hitler. "The industrial situation in Germany is critical," he told newspapermen. "It will come to a head next spring after the Saar plebiscite."

The president was represented both by Pearson and White House attaches as strictly silent on the report of Pearson and the whole European outlook. No new moves were apparently in prospect in this connection.

AUSTRIAN POLICE JAIL GUARDSMEN

Raid on Heimwehr Barracks Starts Rumors of New Civil Strife.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Steel-helmeted policemen tonight stood guard about heimwehr barracks in the Floridsdorf section of Vienna, but the government formally denied reports that there had been hand-to-hand fighting between the two forces.

Officials admitted privately, however, that there was real trouble between two groups of the heimwehr, the fascist iron guard headed by Prince Ernst von Starhemberg.

Jealousy and suspicion existing between Vienna heimwehr detachments and those of the lower Austrian provinces was said to be at the bottom of the difficulties which led to today's spectacular raid, conducted by emergency police forces, on the heimwehr barracks.

Men of both groups, it was said, were stationed in the Floridsdorf buildings, and the police action, which was followed by the arrest of numbers of heimwehmen, was described as preventive in nature.

The immediate cause of the raid was the demand by provincial heimwehmen that the Viennese commander of the barracks should be replaced by a heimwehr, it was said.

There were reports, adding to the confusion, that other military units had charged the heimwehmen with being "untrustworthy and traitors."

Already wracked by last February's socialist rebellion and the Nazi putsch in July which brought death to Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, the capital wondered if the new trouble presaged further civil strife.

Many tonight were willing to predict another putsch shortly, this time by the heimwehr.

The Floridsdorf section, former socialist center, was taken over by armed militiamen following the socialist unsuccessful uprising in February.

Today's clash was regarded as significant because Major Emil Fey, minister of defense, nominally commands the heimwehr.

Relief Fund Allotted

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 28.—The Florida emergency relief administration today notified the state's relief allotment for September would be $1,810,500, including $1,450,000 for general relief purposes.

More White Men Quit Memphis Lumber Mill

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A second department of the Little Rock plant of E. L. Bruce Lumber Company was closed today by Manager Max H. Haden, as mill officials and workers failed to reach an agreement on employment of negroes, which led to a "color line" walkout yesterday.

A committee representing the 90-odd white millmen who quit work at the finished dimension department conferred with E. L. McKinley, state labor commissioner, today. McKinley agreed to act as mediator, but negotiations were halted when Deputy Commissioner Harry Malmgren was unable to reach Manager Haden.

Earlier Haden said the company had not altered its determination to employ negroes in the finished dimensions department on some jobs formerly held by white men. He said the two departments now shut down will remain closed indefinitely.

300,000 AFFECTED BY STRIKE IN SOUTH

Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama To Bear Brunt of Textile Walkout in Dixie

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Approximately 300,000 workers, their families and the communities in which they live would be affected by a general strike in the south's cotton manufacturing industry.

While mills are scattered throughout 11 southern states, the greatest economic effect of such a close-down would be borne by the Carolinas. Here are concentrated a vast proportion of the south's 19,500,000 spindles, 372,000 looms and 68,000 knitting machines. Here are 752 of the south's 1,292 mills.

Practically all these are located in the Piedmont—a 100-mile strip running from Virginia to Georgia—which in the past 15 years has become the south's most highly industrialized area, and the center of the nation's textile manufacturing.

The south as a whole contains more than two-thirds of the nation's total spindles, the Carolinas almost one-half, and southern cotton mills in recent months have consumed approximately four-fifths of the total domestic cotton production, according to government figures.

In the Carolinas are approximately 200,000 textile workers, mostly south:

State	Spindles	Looms	Knitting Machines
North Carolina	110,000	568	6,359,282
South Carolina	114,000	184	3,669,143
Georgia	40,000	186	3,424,061
Alabama	35,000	107	1,907,406
Mississippi	10,000	720	320,352
Tennessee	12,000	118	738,792
Virginia	20,000	65	724,438
Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas	10,000	44	413,976

(Figures for number of workers in states where there are no records are based on comparison with number of spindles and looms per worker in states where known.)

OPERATORS READY TO CLOSE PLANTS

Last night by the cotton garment industry, a presidential edict shortening hours and increasing wages for some 200,000 workers.

The order, effective October 1, reduced hours from 40 to 36 weekly and provided a corresponding 10 per cent increase in wage rates. While the industries are entirely unrelated, the textile union leaders saw in the order a possible precedent through which they might ultimately obtain similar benefits.

Despite the intervention of the labor board, strike leaders continued with plans for the strike to take effect a week from today. Whether all manufacturers planned to close their mills when and if the strike becomes effective, was not known.

Reports to Gorman said the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company at Manchester, N. H., had closed all its chemical departments today, and that one local was reported locked out in Uniontown, Ala., yesterday. Paul A. Redmond, representing nine textile mills in Alabama, said they would be closed if the strike took place.

Plenty of Stocks.

Other manufacturers in the south and in New England, having surplus stocks and a slump in demand, generally were reported as not unwilling to accept the opportunity of a showdown with labor at this time.

Gorman, at a press conference today, accused Sloan of attempting to put the union in the position of striking against the government or against the cotton textile code—first of the industrial charters drawn under NRA.

"I am informed," he said, "that President George A. Sloan, of the cotton textile institute is attempting to reach members of the cotton textile code authority by long distance telephone in order to ascertain which of them will accompany him to Washington to see Chairman Garrison, of the national labor relations board."

"I brought this report at once to the attention of our special strike committee. As chairman of the committee and for all of its members, I find it necessary to report that we are not striking against the government and we are not interested in meeting with the code authority."

"We have made clear our willingness to meet Mr. Garrison in response to his invitation, but we shall not meet the code authority. We have conveyed that fact to Chairman Garrison. We will meet representatives of management who are authorized and ready to discuss issues on the basis we have already laid down."

Three Parties.

The conference, through which Garrison hopes to lay at least a foundation for settlement of the textile controversy, would be attended by the cotton textile industrial relations board, headed by Robert Bruere, and by manufacturers and strike leaders.

When informed that the industrial relations group also had been invited to the conference, Gorman asserted: "We'll do no business with the Bruere board."

Gorman himself was aware of the plan of many manufacturers to close their mills. Of the reported large stocks on hand, he said, "Well, a strike will reduce that surplus."

A 25 per cent curtailment schedule under which the industry had operated since June 5 expired Saturday. A request for an extension of the curtailment is now before the NRA.

Formal announcement of the strike will be made at the close of a full meeting of the executive council of the United Textile Workers and its strike committee on Thursday. Unless a last-minute change in plans is made, the order will call for complete stoppage of work at the end of the day on Friday. The next working day will be Tuesday, September 4.

Other industrial labor developments of Tuesday were:

The Aluminum Company of America presented a proposal to leaders of its striking workers, but Boris Shiskin, A. F. of L. executive, said "It is an agreement with ourselves." Peace conferences went on.

More truckmen joined the 10,000 threatening a walkout which would cripple food delivery in New York and the regional labor board tried to arrange a conference to avert it.

The labor relations board went into the protracted strike of employees in the Kohler Plumbing Manufacturing Company's "model village," and called a hearing for August 30 into charges that the company had violated labor sections of the NRA.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, denounced the tactics of the Chicago Motor Coach Company, engaged in a dispute with striking union drivers. Striking relief workers in Milwaukee, picketing FEBA job sites by automobile, thrashed a foreman severely. Earlier a plant of the National Biscuit Company, closed by labor troubles, had been showered with rocks and with eggshells loaded with red paint.

More than 5,000 white and Filipino workers in the rubber and apple industries of California prepared to strike for higher wages. Spokane's transportation was hampered by a walkout of 140 bus drivers and street car operators.

COTTON GARMENT INDUSTRY
FACES THREAT OF STRIKE

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The possibility of a strike in the cotton garment industry, to enforce the order of President Roosevelt cutting hours and raising wages, was brought forth today by trade unionists as an answer to the manufacturers' resolution of refusal to abide by the White House order.

Jacob S. Potofsky, vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union—whose president, Sidney Hillman, is a member of the labor advisory board of the NRA—said the general board of his union and the International Ladies' Garment Workers would meet within a week in New York to decide on a policy of joint action.

"The amalgamated," Potofsky said, "will do everything under the sun to enforce the president's order. This order cutting hours and raising wages was arrived at by the administration after careful study and consideration."

The position of the International Ladies' Garment Workers was stated by David Dubinsky, its president: "If they (the manufacturers) defy the government we will enforce the order. We can, even with a general strike. But I am confident the government will enforce the order."

These two unions are among the strongest in the ranks of organized labor. Dr. Leo Wolman, for years a counselor of the amalgamated, was drafted at the outset of the NRA for a post on the labor advisory board, aided in formulating policy and now is on the automobile labor relations board.

The president's order lowered hours and increased wages of some 250,000 workers in the cotton garment industry. It was declared effective October 1 and manufacturers have until September 5 to file protests in Washington.

The massed protest of manufacturers, in a resolution voicing refusal to abide by the order, placed the question directly up to the president.

Colonel R. B. Paddock, executive director of the cotton garment code authority, was designated by the manufacturers to call on the president and explain the industry's attitude in more detail.

Paddock waited an opportunity to visit the president at the Hyde Park "summer White House."

The manufacturers authorized Raymond F. Walsh, their counsel, to fight the case even to the courts if necessary.

The code authority offices said the next move was up to Mr. Roosevelt. This, too, was the view of the unions.

"We are sure," said Potofsky, of the amalgamated, "he will act with speed and vigor."

GREEN FINDS LABOR IS RELATIVELY TRANQUIL

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The storms of industry may raise more racket, but beyond them, said President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, today, many of the nation's greatest unions are going along untroubled by strikes and strife.

He lamented that spectacular strikes in certain foci had given a "distorted picture" of the general labor situation.

"Without deep inquiry," said Green to an interviewer, "I can think of three great industrial fields which have been untroubled—railway transportation, printing and pottery operations."

To the federation leader, who has listened closest to the voice of the workman, it is the labor groups that attract least attention which signify the inherent good health of the labor body.

Naturally, he said, the pyrotechnics of a San Francisco general strike, and the ominous thunder of the impending walkout of textile workers, focus national attention on labor's turbulence rather than its peace. But Green would rather look at the tranquil side.

"There are probably many other industries than the three named," he said, "in which workers and employers have lived in harmony, working out their own agreements and attracting little attention. In recent years both the railway transportation and printing industries have been free of any major difficulties. Any disputes which have arisen have been of local character."

Both of these, he said, were among the earliest in the organized labor field. Pottery operations, another pioneer group, have had no strike since 1870, the workers each year negotiating their terms with little difficulty.

Building trades and clothing groups have suffered more trouble in the United States since 1917, figures of the United States department of labor show, while mining and textile industries stand third and fourth in the labor dispute column.

treatment, all I can say is that I hope it isn't true."

The clergyman declared that if Smith is injured or "put to death in some mysterious way," the Brotherhood of Youth, of which he is president, would call for a federal investigation.

Watson argued that Smith's conviction on a robbery charge was illegal and therefore the extradition warrant was null and void. He maintained Smith was innocent of the charge, and the Rev. Mr. Burns declared it was a custom in the south to "railroad" negro prisoners into chain gangs so the state would have cheap labor for road work.

Asserting he had made a study of southern prison camps since 1929, when his brother was arrested in Chicago as a fugitive, the clergyman declared 75 per cent of the negro chain gang prisoners were innocent.

Warden Smith told reporters that no cruelty was permitted in his camp and said it compared favorably with other camps. He denied the prisoner's statement that a scar on his left temple was the result of a pick-axe wound inflicted by a guard.

Justice Steyer, dismissing Smith's habeas corpus writ, granted a stay until tomorrow so that Smith's counsel could argue an appeal from his decision. If the appeal is denied, Warden Smith will be free to take the prisoner back.

PAUL SMITH CONVICTED
IN FLOYD COUNTY IN '33

Paul Smith was convicted at the April, 1933, term of Floyd superior court, according to records at the state capital. He was charged with robbery and sentenced to from 7 to 10 years on the chain gang.

He began serving his term on May 24, 1933, on the Whitfield county highway camp and escaped on July 3 of the same year. Details of the escape were not available Tuesday night.

Judge E. L. Rainey, of the Georgia prison commission, on Tuesday stated that there was no danger of Smith suffering any abuses on his return to Georgia.

"Such charges, while absurd on their face, have become the routine method of criminals seeking to avoid extradition to Georgia," said Judge Rainey. "I am not personally acquainted with Warden Smith, of Whitfield county, because he was only recently appointed, but his reputation is that of an exceptionally humane man. The state of New York can rest assured that the state of Georgia will treat the same humilities in treating its convicts that any modern commonwealth observes."

MRS. TURNER E. SMITH.

A marriage announcement of outstanding interest throughout the south and east is made by Mrs. James Allen Bunce, of her daughter, Miss Leila Bunce, to Turner E. Smith, which took place on Tuesday, August 28. The impressive ceremony was performed at noon by Bishop Warren A. Candler in the presence of the immediate family.

The bride wore a suit of Duval wool made in an exotic shade of magdalen brown. The dress was unique combination wool and satin, and the fitted coat was richly trimmed with imported wool. The ensemble was completed by a hat to match fashioned along rakish Tyrolean lines and other accessories to match. Her corsage was of bronze orchids.

Mrs. Smith attended school at Columbia University, in New York, where she received her B. S. and M. S. degrees, during the time she was president of the Georgia Club and vice president of the Southern Club.

She is well known in connection with her activities in the State and National Home Economics Association. She was former supervisor of home economics in the Fulton County High schools.

Mr. Smith, after leaving Emory College, entered the publishing business and later organized the Turner E. Smith & Company, publishers of school and college textbooks, which recently celebrated its tenth anniversary by honoring its Georgia authors. Immediately following the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for a short motor trip, and will reside in Atlanta after October 1.

Miss Jansen Gives Dinner Party. Miss Frederica Jansen, who is leaving Atlanta, to make her home at Highland Springs, Va., near Richmond, was honored at a dinner party given by the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Francis Virginia tea room on Monday evening.

Miss Jansen has served as recording secretary of the club during this year, and the members of the club regret not only to lose her as a member, but as an efficient secretary. Miss Jansen will transfer her membership from the Atlanta club to the Richmond club, where she will have the privilege of membership in the same club as Mrs. Celine McDonald Bowman, national president, and Mrs. Eudora Ramsey Richardson, as national field secretary.

Miss Maude H. Sewell, president of the Atlanta club, expressed appreciation of Miss Jansen's work as a member and in her official capacity, and on behalf of the club, presented her with a gold watch. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Harrell Jackson at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 25.

Mrs. Stanton is a graduate of the local high school and the Georgia State Women's College at Milledgeville. For the past several years she has been teaching in the consolidated schools in Newton and Henry counties. Mr. Stanton holds a responsible position with the Hooper Construction Company. The young couple will reside at Monroeville, Ala.

Members of the executive board of the Business and Professional Women's Club, will meet with the president, Miss Sewell, at her home, at 1156 Roselle drive, N. E., Wednesday evening, September 5, at 7:30 o'clock.

The visitors arrived in the city Monday, with Miss Simms and Miss Bright Bickerstaff from Camp Dixie for Girls, where the two Atlanta belles have been counselors for the summer camping season. Guests for Miss Simms' breakfast were Misses Mimi O'Brien, Bright Bickerstaff, Betty Roache, Julie McClatchey, Dorothea Blackshear, Laura McGinty, Jane McMillan, Virginia Dillon, Laura Whitner and the hostesses.

Mrs. Holland Lowndes, of San Antonio, Texas, continues to be feted at informal social affairs as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Daniel Jr.

Mrs. Lowndes shared honors Tuesday with Mrs. Julian Prade, of Dallas, who is visiting Mrs. Charles Downman, at the luncheon given by Mrs. Fred Cockrell at the Piedmont Driving Club. Shining honor was a small group of friends of the visitors and hostesses.

Carroll-Stephens. RICHLAND, Ga., Aug. 28.—The wedding of Mrs. Mary L. Carroll, of Columbus, to Curtis V. Stephens, of near Richland, which was solemnized in the parlors of the First Baptist church in Columbus, August 15, with the Rev. Dr. Frederick S. Porter officiating, was an event of interest in this section of the state. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens left Columbus for their home near Richland. The bridegroom is a citizen of this county and is prominent in church circles and affairs of the state and county. The bride is a popular member of social circles of Columbus.

Birthday Party. Mrs. A. F. Akers entertained Tuesday at a children's party at her home on Stovall boulevard, honoring her young daughter, Florence Lane Akers, who celebrated her seventh birthday.

The guests included Emily Wright, Frances Stripling, Barbara Sterrett, Betty Slaton, Julia Carter, Ruth Middlebrooks, Harriet Smith, Caroline Smith, Gail Akers, Anne Akers, Caroline Brown, ney Hall, Norma Lee Hicks, Jodie Hicks, Patty Anne Sandberg, Marion Frances Grove, Peggy Wilkins, Mimi Wilkins, Barbara Wilson, Jane McRae, Katherine Johnstone, Frances Johnstone, Martha Frances Salter, Elizabeth Dunn, Annie Wetmore, Virginia Caldwell, Elizabeth Wolff, Anne Upshaw, Dorothy Dunn, Daisy Miller, John Akers and Marshall Akers.

Phi Delta Kappas Plan House Party For This Week-End

Among interesting events planned for the forthcoming week-end will be the house party to be given by the Georgia Alpha chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity. Each year this organization sponsors a house party for the Labor Day week-end. This year the group will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Florence at Haleson, summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Florence and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Florence, at Lake Burton.

The party will leave Atlanta by motor Saturday afternoon returning Monday evening. On this occasion the guests will be limited to active members of the chapter and an equal group of young ladies.

The chaperons will be Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Florence. The young ladies invited are Misses Dorcia Smith, Ruth Layfield, Sarah Wood, Ena Chambers, Roberta Kilpatrick, Ruth Mathis, Myra Davis, Mary Tucker, Margie Duncan, Edythe Summers, Ruth Peebles, Alicia Burkett, Elizabeth Joiner, Martha Cowan and Mesdames Phil Peebles, Ralph H. ## ANN STEPS OUT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

She goes to the library where Nick Hamill, manager of her employer, John Hamill, head of Hamill & Harrison, advertising agents, finds her. Saying he is bored too, Nick asks her to go to meet his friends at a hotel downtown. She goes and has a good time. All go to Nick's bachelor apartment for breakfast and he drives Ann home. Later Doug snags and warns her against Nick. Now go on with the story:

INSTALLMENT V.

She was not quite sure how she felt about him. Had she been asked, she would doubtless have said, "He is the kindest friend I've ever had. I don't tell him how I feel about things. I don't have to spare anything with him. I've been closer to him in friendship than to any man in my life."

Young men tried to get her phone number. One tried to kiss her while dancing. A stout elderly gentleman trampled her silver slippers. A young married man bewailed his loneliness and sought solace from Ann.

In this gilded atmosphere she moved as if in a dream. How far removed was this elegant party from her home and office duties. It was as though Nick Hamill had opened a new and glittering world to her.

Nick claimed her again. "It's cold outside," he said, "but the view is excellent. Shall we take a bird's-eye view of Baltimore?"

He put his arm around her to protect her from the cold. They stood silently side by side on the open balcony. Electric lights blundered their giant eyes, and down below the double row of street lights on Charles street seemed like tiny lights in a Christmas garden.

"It's rather overwhelming," said Ann. "When you get high up and look down on things, it makes you feel very small. I don't have to pretend with you," he said. "You're thinking of Doug."

"Yes, yes, I was. Habit with me, I guess. Do you think, Nick, I can find something or someone to take his place?"

"You mean the place he has occupied in your mind?"

She turned and looked at him. For the first time since she had known him she felt the desire to be loved by him. But it wasn't really she thought, a desire to be loved. It was that she wanted to borrow something from him, some of his wonderful indifference, his strength, and his ability to see things clearly. Did some foolish hope of Doug, she asked herself, keep her from loving this man? Nick Hamill would never be a sulking boy.

"And dance," she said. She didn't tell him how much this meant to her and how terribly important it was to catch it up with her hands so that in less vivid moments she would have something to remember. Would he understand how few glamorous moments she had had in her life.

When they came back into the bright lights, Ann saw Doug dancing with Gail Tracy. Across the room their eyes met. Doug looked confused and angry, then faintly smiling. Gail, beautiful in a vividly red dress, danced close to him.

"Steady," said Nick. "I think I shocked him," said Ann.

"Naturally."

Hard as she tried she could not avoid Doug's searching eyes wherever she went. Toward the latter part of the evening, when she and Nick were talking to their host, Gail and Doug approached them.

"I told Doug," said Gail. "We should get together." She smiled. "Miss Dryden is an old friend of Doug's and you, Nick, were one of the unexpressed emotions of my youth."

Ann felt Nick's firm grasp on her arm. It said, "Be natural. Don't show how you feel."

Ann turned to Doug. "I thought you were back in school."

"I am due back," he said, "but there's too much going on around town."

His eyes never left her. There was perplexity in them. She knew the look. He had never seen her look this way before. He had never seen her outside the shabby atmosphere of her home, and probably could not believe that this brilliant and lovely Ann in her tight-fitting black dress with Nick Hamill's orchids pinned to her shoulder was the same girl he had known all his life, the girl whose encouraging letters had been massive of hope during his first home-sick year at college, the girl whose slender, capable hands practically supported her whole family.

Nick moved from her side. Gail took his arm.

"Old friends," said Nick, "should dance together."

He left with Gail. Ann faced Doug.

"Old friends should dance together," he said finally.

How faintly it was to be dancing with him again? Would nothing, she asked herself, time or change, lessen the feeling she had for him? When they met briefly in this, though the old love was finished, would this same feeling possess her at the mere touching of hands?

"You seem to be stepping out," he said. "Nick Hamill has made other girls step out. He's famous for that."

"I don't think you ought to be sarcastic about him."

She wished that she would not recall for her tender intimacy of old.

"If I thought I had been wrong about you," she said, "I'd gladly apologize. I've thought it over very carefully. I think this way is best—your way and my way."

"Separate paths."

"Yes, I waited—too long. I've missed a lot. If," she lifted her head, "I had been sure of you, I wouldn't have minded the waiting. You see, all this, parties like this, you've had and I've missed. And I stayed home and waited. It was too much to ask."

Doug looked away. "Nick Hamill," he said bitterly, "is teaching you fast."

"You weren't cut out for this?"

"I shall know in good time," said Ann. "But I was cut out for you."

She was thankful when the dance ended and she was back beside Nick again. "How did it go?" he asked. "Terribly," she smiled. "What did Gail say about him? Her eyes followed us all around the room."

"I'm afraid she's made a dead set for him. May as well tell you."

"You don't have to tell me. I know. It's hopeless."

"Do you want to go now?"

"Let's. I'm sorry his coming here has ruined the evening."

"Which proves you couldn't cast him aside as lightly as you thought."

"You understand me," said Ann.

She was silent during the drive home. As on the two previous occasions Nick Hamill lingered only long enough to say good night.

Again she had the feeling of wanting to be held by him and of pressing her face against his coat. It was not the same feeling she had with Doug. As long as she could remember, she had given strength to him; she had always been there when he needed her.

"People don't have to actually say a great many things," said Nick. Her face clouded. Impulsively she pressed her face against his rough coat.

"You know I still love him. Is that what you mean?"

"The eternal problem of Jean" was taken up one morning before Ann left for the office. She went in her sister's room and awakened her. Jean rubbed her eyes sleepily and frowned.

"You've had quite a vacation," said Ann. "It's time you got back to school again."

Jean yawned and gathered her wits. "I'm not going back," she said. "I told mother I was through. How is Latin and geography going to help me out?"

Jean was obstinate and Ann had always found it difficult to argue with anyone. She loved Jean, humored her, gave her clothes and pin money and could not get into the all important matter of education, argue with her.

"You've given me enough," said Jean. "If I get a job, you'll have more for yourself."

Ann smiled appreciatively, knowing that her sister's generosity was not prompted by selfishness. It was Jean's crafty little way to make things easier for herself.

"I've thought it all out," said the younger girl running her fingers through her curls and looking unusually sincere. Ann listened with an odd, understanding smile. "I'm not out for business. It would bore me to death. And the idea of marrying some struggling young man and living on next to nothing doesn't appeal to me either."

She pulled the blanket up around her shoulders and asked Ann soberly, "Do you think I'm very good-looking?"

"Of course, you are," she answered glancing at her watch. "You won a bathing beauty contest last year, didn't you? And you know perfectly well that men turn around twice to look at you."

Jean shook her head vigorously. "Exactly. If they turn on the street, they'll want to see me, won't they? That's just what I figured out. I'm going on the stage for good."

"When I was your age, I thought I wanted to go on the stage, too. It isn't a matter of beauty, you know. It's training and ability."

"Not for a hooper. I can dance and carry a tune."

Ann sat on the bed. "Jean, you've got to get that out of your head and come down to earth. New York is full of starving girls with stage ambitions—beautiful girls. Besides, you're too young. When you finish school, . . ."

"Go back? I won't do it. I'm not," she said as a thrust, "going to let happen to me what happened to you. Fall in love with some boy and forget everything else. Wait for his letters, and sit around the house waiting for him to call."

"But I didn't mind," said Ann. "When you care, you don't mind."

"And you," continued Jean, "after all these years of fooling around with Doug, you've just come to."

"Tell me about this 'penitence party' where the clothes elegant? You see, she lifted her eyes, "I'm not going to wait. I want things and I'm going to get 'em myself."

"I like your ambitious nature, but you can't go now."

Jean dropped her lashes and sulked. "I won't be told what to do! It's my life."

Ann glanced at her watch again and got up. "I've got to go to the office now."

"Office," mocked Jean, "and take shorthand on a little pad and make letters out of it. Break your back over a typewriter and ruin your eyes. Take sarcastic remarks from some dumb old boss. Not me!"

"Well, I'm certainly a success at giving advice," said Ann.

Jean stretched her bare, rounded arm toward her sister. "Gosh, you take all those boys to town. If only he could get free from his bonds, he might dash past the women and children, reach the river bank and leap into his canvas boat. Perhaps he could get a good start before the men came in pursuit."

It was a wild plan, almost certain of failure; but he tugged to free his hands and legs, and only the fact that the chains were well tied kept him from making a break for liberty. He uttered a groan as he heard the men coming out of the hut after their meeting.

TOWELS IN GAY COLORS.

Get out the embroidery cotton and some toweling, and have a good time making these cross-stitch towels. They're lovely, whether you do them all in one color or in a variety of colors, and they make a really decorative asset to any kitchen. Make them for that girl whose hope chest needs a few kitchen accessories, or do them for the next bazaar and see how fast they'll sell! They're in those 8 to the inch crosses that are easily done.

In pattern 5197 you will find a transfer pattern of six motifs averaging 4 1/2 by 8 inches; material requirements; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Bryan Grant, national clay court champion, lost in straight sets to Jimmy Halverstadt, city champion, in an exhibition match which featured the second day of the Georgia state tennis tournament yesterday. Grant, who has been playing on grass in the last couple of months, found himself unable to readjust his game to clay. He played well but Halverstadt was too steady. Grant leaves tonight for the national singles championship at Forest Hills. He is seeded seventh.

State Tourney Favorite Victorious in Great Exhibition; Gillespie Loses to Reynolds.

And so it was yesterday with Jimmy Halverstadt, city champion, who won a straight set victory from Bryan Grant, national clay court champion, in a featured exhibition of the second day of the Georgia state tennis tournament at the Biltmore club.

Grant usually is one of the very toughest players to beat. He demonstrated

D. M. Jordan, well-known Atlanta bondsman, who had been a resident of East Point for 20 years, died Tuesday night at his residence at 309 North Chaney street, East Point. He was 56 years of age and had been in failing health for several months. He was seriously ill only a few weeks.

Mr. Jordan was born near Tucker, Ga., the son of the late Rev. John A. Jordan. He had been in the bonding business for 14 years and was a partner in the firm of Jordan & Garner, the company previously having been managed by Jordan & Jones.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. L. P. Warren; a granddaughter, Juanita Hemperley; and a grandson, Carlos M. Hemperley Jr.; two brothers, John H. and J. A. Jordan, of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. Mildred Phillips, of New York city.

Funeral services are to be held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning at the residence and burial will be in the Corinth cemetery, near Stone Mountain, with A. C. Hemperley & Sons in charge.

Pallbearers will be Judge Jesse M. Wood, Recorder John L. Cone, Captain A. J. Holcomb, Lieutenant W. M. Weaver, C. P. Bentley and Deputy Sheriff James D. Bazemore.

Capone Asks Review Of Decision on Writ

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(P)—Alphonse Capone, the convicted Chicago gangster, today asked the supreme court to review the judgment of lower courts denying him a writ of habeas corpus filed against A. C. Adershold, warden of the Atlanta penitentiary.

The petition was filed for Capone by Attorneys William E. Leahy and William J. Hughes Jr., of Washington. It contended Capone was tried in the federal district court in Illinois and convicted on three charges of violating the internal revenue laws after expiration of the statute of limitations.

Capone filed his petition for a habeas corpus writ in the federal court of northern Georgia and it was denied. He appealed to the circuit court of appeals in the fifth circuit, which affirmed the judgment of the lower court.

American Kidnaped By Bandits at Mukden

MUKDEN, Manchukuo, Aug. 28.—(P)—Solomon Zeitlin, 32, said to be an American citizen and a former resident of Savannah, is held by kidnapers for ransom.

Police confirmed officially today reports that Zeitlin, understood to be a fur dealer, had been missing for a week. He was seized while on a picnic trip to the historic Manchukuo tombs, just outside of Mukden.

A woman companion was reported into the city by one of the kidnapers. He then presented demands for ransom, only to be held by police.

Georgia Light Accepts 18 Per Cent Reduction

The Georgia Light and Power Company, which serves Waycross, Valdosta and Bainbridge and the surrounding areas, Tuesday notified the Georgia public service commission that it was accepting without further contest the order of the commission reducing rates 18 per cent.

The reduction, it was estimated by the commission, will save patrons of the company about $66,000 a year.

The utility recently sought an injunction in the state courts against the rate cut but the restraining order was denied by Judges Virlyn R. Moore, Edgar E. Pomeroy and E. D. Thomas after a hearing in Fulton superior court.

Train Wreck Caused By Washout Kills 2

GREENVILLE, S. C., Aug. 28.—(P)—Two trainmen were instantly killed and another seriously injured when seven cars of a 22-car Southern freight overturned into a washout two miles south of Piedmont early today.

The dead: Elvin Neece, of Columbia, fireman; Henry Parks, of Greenville, negro, brakeman; R. C. Carter, engineer, of Greenwood, suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

The train en route to Columbia from Greenville, ran into a washed-out fill at 3:50 a. m. Heavy rains during the night had weakened the embankment that bordered a small creek.

LABOR LEADERS PLAN CONFERENCE ON STRIKE DETAILS

George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, Tuesday said plans had been completed to throw the influence of the labor movement behind the textile strike in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

A conference of staff representatives of the labor leaders, he added, would be held here Thursday and Friday to complete arrangements for supporting the strike in those states.

Googe said the conference was concerned over misrepresentation of state leaders attributed to southern labor leaders, particularly in relation to the federal government financing the textile strike.

"We have stated that our understanding of the policy of relief officials is to take care of strikers like anyone else on the basis of necessity and want unless the labor department or the labor relations board decides the strike is unjustified. No strike has been executed on a basis of prospective relief assistance and neither will any strike be called or approved on this basis."

He said in setting up the strike machinery care had been taken to prevent disrupting the entire county budget, and that some reduction must be made.

It also was reported that Mizell discussed some means of handling the innumerable dependents who are turned back to the city and county. Finance committee members also were concerned about that. There were rumors that the government contemplates asking local communities to assume that obligation about September 15, although there also was a report that the government probably would carry on until January 1.

Winkler Says Dollfuss Opposed Starhemberg

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 28.—(P)—Dr. Franz Winkler, former Austrian vice chancellor, said tonight in an interview that the late Chancellor Dollfuss had tried to work against the present vice chancellor, Prince Ernst von Starhemberg.

The sensational statement by the prominent agrarian, who was ousted from one of Dollfuss' later cabinets, said attacks upon him in Austria prompted him to make the revelation.

"I was charged with receiving large sums of money to vote against the new constitution," Winkler declared. "That was a lie. I did not receive a cent for this purpose."

"I did get from Dollfuss personally about $50,000 during the last eight months to be used for the purpose of freeing Austria from the influence of von Starhemberg and Major Emil Fey, who Dollfuss said had brought all the misery of civil war upon Austria."

In another recent interview in Czechoslovakia, Winkler, who is in virtual exile, accused the heavyweight of plotting a putsch almost simultaneously with the Nazi attack. He said the suddenness of the latter cut off the heavyweight's plans.

CITY TO TAKE PART IN RELIEF PARLEY

Conference Will Determine
Whether Atlanta, Fulton Are Paying Too Much.

Atlanta officials will join Fulton county commissioners when they confer Thursday afternoon with Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia FERA administrator, in a conference to determine whether the city and county are paying more than their proportionate shares of relief expense.

The decision followed a closed conference Tuesday afternoon between the finance committee of council and Robert C. Mizell, one of the Atlanta citizens sent by the county commission to investigate relief payments made in Alabama cities.

Alderman I. Glor, Hailey, chairman of council's benevolence and pension committee; E. Graham Weston, city controller; and Councilman Aubrey Millam will represent Atlanta at the hearing, according to information obtained by The Constitution.

Atlanta is now paying $40,000 a month into the relief fund, and Fulton county has been paying $25,000 monthly. The conference will be an effort to scale down those payments, both governments feeling that they can no longer pay the bill.

Mizell conferred with the finance committee at the request of the commissioners, he told members who attended the conference.

While Atlanta and Fulton county have been paying $65,000 a month into relief funds, other cities and counties in other states have paid little or nothing for such services, Mizell was quoted as having told the finance committee.

An investigation of payments made in Atlanta by Mizell showed that the city of Montgomery, Ala., pays $500 a month for relief and that the county of Montgomery pays a similar sum. Birmingham has paid only $24,000 thus far into the relief coffers, while the county of Jefferson, in which Birmingham is located has paid $16,000. The same condition exists in Tennessee, according to reports.

A local contact established in every one of the 67 counties of Alabama. One of the county commissioners is named to form a local committee to supervise the relief activity, and he names his associates in that state. There are nine in the county of Montgomery.

In Georgia, the entire matter is handled exclusively through Miss Shepperson's office and through subordinate offices.

Fulton county commissioners will sit at the conference that their appropriations for the relief fund and for other charities, including Grady hospital, have actually increased in recent years, that the commission can not continue to pay $25,000 a month without disrupting the entire county budget, and that some reduction must be made.

It also was reported that Mizell discussed some means of handling the innumerable dependents who are turned back to the city and county. Finance committee members also were concerned about that. There were rumors that the government contemplates asking local communities to assume that obligation about September 15, although there also was a report that the government probably would carry on until January 1.

"Now, you take this cigarette, see?"

"Who—me?"

"Certainly—you! Now, that's an Old Gold cigarette—understand?"

"Uh huh."

"Be quiet and listen, will you? Now, Old Golds are made from pure tobacco, see? Nothing but the choicest and mildest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, see? So naturally they not only taste better but they keep the throat free from irritation. Throat-ease is important to anybody!—especially to a celebrated screen artist such as . . ."

"Who—me?"

"Certainly not! But you will be a happier smoker when your throat gets the thrill of 'smooth as satin' Old Golds."

Mr. Hardy might have put it this way, Mr. Laurel: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. (No artificial flavoring.) That's why Old Golds are easy on THROAT and NERVES.
